CRIPPEN, CAUGHT ON SHIP, UNDER GUARD WITH GIRL

MOODY TELLS TAFT HE WILL LEAVE BENCH

Justice Moody has announced his permanent retirement as a member of the United States Supreme Court. He made the announcement to President Taft in person.

The President called upon Justice Moody yesterday at the latter's Summer home at McDonald Villa, Magnolia Point. They had a long and earnest talk. It was in this conference that Justice Moody told President Taft that he had felt for some time that he would not be able to resume his place on the bench and that he was ready to retire.

This announcement, it is expected, will be made official in the near future. Justice Moody will probably write a letter stating his reasons for seeking freedom from the cares of such an exacting position.

Justice Moody was in a cheerful frame of mind. He sat on the piazza and chatted with the President. It is believed that he made the same announcement to Colonel Roosevelt when he called upon Justice Moody at the Corey Hill Hospital at the time of the last Harvard commencement.

President Taft signed a bill a month ago which provides that Justice Moody may retire from the bench within the next four months at full pay.

His friends hoped that Justice Moody might so far recover as to be able to resume his duties on the bench this Fall when most important matters will come before the Supreme Court. His health, while much improved, is not such as would justify him in resuming his place on the bench. He is fifty-two years old.

PARENTS KEPT BOY IN CAGE OF WIRE

FRANKFORT, Ind., July 29.—Charged with cruel treatment of their son, Ora Lewis and wife, living near here, are in jail. They are accused not only of neglecting the boy but of keeping him in a wire cage while they were away from home. Probation officers who investigated the case say the child was placed in the cage and was almost starved. Lewis says he is determined to rear the boy according to his ideas and that he had placed him in the cage at times to keep him from associating with undesirable children. He and his wife were held under heavy bonds.

MAYOR'S SECRETARY PROMISES TO QUIT

LAWRENCE, July 29.—Matthew Dudley Ripon, secretary to the Mayor, was at work at his desk at City Hall for the first time in two weeks.

Secretary Ripon said that on advice of council he would continue to fill the position to which he was elected until the chief executive of the city was chosen, and he would then tender his resignation, as he had no desire, he said, to remain where he was not wanted.

ALLEGED WIFE SLAYER, ON BOARD STEAMSHIP MONTROSE, IN CUSTODY OF POLICE.

MONTREAL, July 29.—The following dispatch was received here to-day by wireless from the steamer Montrose:

"Crippen and girl closely watched night and day. Apparently have no suspicion. Passengers still in ignorance. Crippen nervous nearing port."

This is the first message containing other than the bare announcement of Crippen's presence on board received since Llewellyn Jones, the wireless operator, first got in range of the Canadian stations yesterday. It shows that the couple are actually in custody, though not formally arrested.

While Captain Kendall of the Montrose, as his own sovereign on the high seas, could, if he thought it best, order the pair imprisoned in irons, such action might develop complications and would save him liable to heavy damages were he mistaken. The fact that he has them under watch, however, is taken as indication of the positiveness of his information as to their identity.

The order, "Separate Crippen and the Le Neve woman," was sent to-day to Constable Gauvreau at Father Point by Commissioner of Police Sherwood. It is understood that the pair will be put through the third degree immediately on their apprehension, the examination being separate.

Story of the Identification.

The full details of how suspicion was first aroused against the supposed Mr. Robinson and his son, and of the long trip across the Atlantic in which Captain Kendall was planning the capture of the couple for whom the entire world was searching, were brought to Montreal this afternoon by wireless in a message from the master of the Montrose. It reads:

"I had my first suspicions after the Montrose had been out two hours from Antwerp. I watched the couple closely and came to the conclusion that the man was Crippen. He was booked as a merchant, and the girl, disguised as his son, as a student.

"Crippen has been reading constantly, is very nervous and does not sleep well. Miss

QUEBEC POLICE COMPLETE PLANS FOR THE ARREST

FATHER POINT, Que., July 29.—Aboard the Liner Montrose, which is creeping through the fog-bound lower reaches of the St. Lawrence, Dr. Hawley Harvey Crippen to-day is being brought to a trap from which there is no escape save suicide. Extreme precautions have been taken to prevent any attempt at death on his part. The most wonderful wireless search for a fugitive the world has ever known, which began when the wife of Belle Elmore, Crippen's wife, was found buried in the cellar of their London home, is rapidly reaching its climax and Crippen's face is nearly run.

With all doubt of the presence of Crippen and his companion, Ethel Clare Leneve, swept away by the wireless messages received from Llewellyn Jones, the lad who operates the Marconi instruments on the Montrose, the Canadian police are lying in wait like waterdogs at this little settlement of the South Shore.

With Inspector Dew of Scotland Yard due here to-day, the local police representa-

CONEY ISLAND MOB TRIES TO LYNCH NEGROES

NEW YORK, July 29.—An attempt was made to lynch two negroes at Coney Island to-day because the negroes wanted to bathe in the ocean with the white men and women. The negroes had narrow escapes. They slipped into bathing suits during the heat of the day and went to the pier. About sixty white men and women were in the water at the time. An outcry against the presence of the negroes was raised by some one.

Several men grabbed Frank Davis, one of the negroes, who is slight of build, and pulled him out into deep water. They did not know he could swim, and their object seemed to be to drown him. Davis was pulled beyond his depth, but he proved a good and fast swimmer, and he saved himself by striking out. He made a wide detour, got to shore and ran for cover.

WESTINGHOUSE OUSTED: ATKINS SUCCEEDS HIM

NEW YORK, July 29.—Edwin F. Atkins was to-day elected president of the Westinghouse Electric & Manufacturing Company to succeed George Westinghouse at the annual meeting of the board of directors. Robert Mather was re-elected chairman of the executive board.

The ousting of Westinghouse was a surprise, as it was supposed, that he was slated for re-election, despite his recent attack on Chairman Mather. Atkins has been a director, his term expiring in 1911. His election is temporary.

Following to-day's meeting the following statement was given out:

"At a meeting of the board of directors of the Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing Company for organization, in pursuance of the bylaws, held to-day, the following officers were elected:

"Chairman, Robert Mather; president, Edwin F. Atkins; vice-presidents, E. M. Herr; second vice-president, L. A. Osborne; third vice-president and attorney, Charles A. Terry; acting vice-presidents, C. W. Hebard and H. D. Short; secretary, W. A. Esselyn; treasurer and assistant secretary, T. W. Slemon; assistant treasurers, H. F. Boyts and E. St. John; auditor and controller, James B. Bennett; assistant auditors, E. E. Craig and W. D. Covil, Jr.

"Mr. Atkins has been since the reorganization of the company a member of the Board of Directors of the Westinghouse Company. At the earnest solicitation of the board he has accepted the election. He does so with the distinct understanding that his retention of the position is to be temporary and until the board shall select a permanent successor."

Edwin F. Atkins is a member of the firm of E. Atkins & Co. of Boston. His home is in Belmont. He is the owner of 22,000 acres of sugar lands in Cuba. Heretofore he has been prominent, so far as the public knew, in connection with the sugar business. His office in Boston is at No. 131 State street.

TROOPS GUARD COLUMBUS CARS

COLUMBUS, July 29.—Troops are in possession of the city and the State capitol grounds present a warlike aspect as the headquarters of the commanding officers, the station of field artillery, signal and ambulance corps.

The street car strike is now in the hands of Adjutant-General Charles C. Weybrecht and Brigadier-General William V. McAlen. Mayor Marshall was refused permission to pass through the lines on East Broad street, where Troop A, Cleveland's cavalry company, is stationed.

Street cars were started after three regiments of the State militia were distributed along the lines in all parts of the city. There was little demonstration during the arrival of troops aside from the occasional explosion of torpedoes, jeers and catcalls from union sympathizers.

To Buy, Trade Rent or Sell

Few people realize how complete and useful is the People's Selling Market of this city—in other words, the classified columns of the Boston American. The best place in the city if you have a bargain to offer, an exchange to make, a business chance to propose, a house to sell or rent, is on the American's Classified Pages. In fact, every possible want can be realized.

NEWPORT "400" HIT BY FRAUD, NOW CHARGED

NEW YORK, July 29.—When Mrs. William T. Bull, widow of the millionaire physician, appeared in Jefferson Market Police Court to-day to prosecute John Qualey and Harvey W. Corbett, president and treasurer of the Magnesia-Asbestos Company, on the charge that she had been swindled out of $35,000, Dr. Preston Satterwhite, another member of the Newport colony, walked into court and charged that he and others of the "Four Hundred" had been similarly swindled out of many thousands of dollars.

Dr. Satterwhite said that Qualey had become well connected in Newport and had acquired an one of the expensive cottages there.

He had a number of good introductions, was of distinguished address and talked convincingly of the possibilities in the Magnesia-Asbestos Company.

Qualey and Corbett were held in $20,000 bail each this afternoon. Examination was set down for next Friday, by which time it is expected an extradition warrant will arrive from Rhode Island. They were arrested here on a Newport warrant.

$300 LEFT FOR WINDOW.

The sum of $300 is given to the Methodist Episcopal Church of Allston for a memorial window by the will of Elizabeth M. Noyes, filed to-day in the Suffolk Probate Court. The remainder of the estate is left to the New England Deaconess Hospital and the Woman's Home and Foreign Missionary Society.

MAN SHOOTS MOTHER AND HIS BROTHER

Word was telephoned the Quincy police at 2:30 o'clock this afternoon that Louis Resilli had shot and killed his mother and fatally wounded one of his brothers at their home on Trafford street.

Another man was shot.

The message added that another brother had procured a gun and started in search of the alleged assassin with the expressed determination of hunting him down and killing him.

It was said in the neighborhood that Louis Resilli had been absent from his home for some time, and that he had returned suddenly.

The report was that he had quarrelled with his family, and that he had returned for the purpose of taking revenge.

BICYCLIST NOTIFIES THE POLICE.

The police were notified by a man on a bicycle who rode past the Resilli house just after the shooting. His attention was attracted by a group of women who were struggling with a man.

This man was he brother of the Resilli boys, that had done the shooting. The man learned, so he told the police, that the mother and one brother had been shot and killed.

The police hurried a squad of men to the house. Resilli is a granite cutter.

DON JAIME CALLS REVOLT IN SPAIN

MADRID, July 29.—A call to arms was to-day issued at San Sebastian by the Carlist Pretender to the throne, Don Jaime of Bourbon.

The manifesto congratulates the Spanish people on their loyalty to the Pope in the Vatican's dispute with King Alfonso and Premier Canalejas:

"I will lead the battle!" are the concluding words of the document.

Its issue has caused tremendous excitement here.

The Republican leaders have met in conference, and it is believed an uprising against all royalty will follow the first move of the Carlists.

RUPTURE AND WARFARE PREDICTED.

El Mundo, discussing the threatened break between the Spanish Government and the Vatican over the refusal of Premier Canalejas to rescind the Imperial decree which permits non-Catholic societies to display the insignia for public worship, says:

"The Holy See has no reason to feel offended. It is heading deliberately toward a rupture which will precipitate the opening of a rapid and energetic anti-clerical campaign."

Premier Canalejas to-day conferred with King Alfonso on the crisis in the relations between Madrid and the Vatican. It was reported semi-officially that the King gave Senor Canalejas a promise of his continued support in the struggle with the clericals. The King's attitude has split the court into factions, but it is admitted that it has done much to check the spread of radicalism in Spain.

Clericals Plan Campaign.

The clericals in the Cortes to-day held a meeting at which a plan of action was discussed. The general understanding in official circles is that the clericals will try to secure the downfall of the ministry. In view of the nature of the contest, however, Canalejas will have the support of almost the entire left, and his defeat is regarded as doubtful in the extreme.

GRAND TRUNK TIE-UP HOLDS

BUFFALO, N. Y., July 29.—The tie-up of Grand Trunk freight at Buffalo is complete. Not a wheel has moved in the freight yards at Black Rock for several days. Only a few men have been retained at the River street freight house, and all those have been handed over to the Canadian Pacific and Michigan Central. All freight being accepted by the Grand Trunk for shipment is subject to delay. Through passenger trains are moving at Buffalo on schedule time.

The service to the North, including Toronto and Muskoka resorts, is up to schedule. There has been no demonstration whatever on the American side of the river. No freight or passenger trains are moving at Bridgeburg, and strikers and strike sympathizers are stationed at various points along the Grand Trunk line.

HERD OF 20,000 WALRUS.

SEATTLE, Wash., July 29.—The gasoline trading schooner Helen Johnson, owned and navigated by Louis Laue, son of Charles D. Laue, the California millionaire, encountered on June 5 a herd of 20,000 walrus swimming in the sea near Nomede Islands in Behring Strait.

"SHAKE" COSTS A DOCTOR $10

Dr. Frank A. Dallen of No. 10 Blackwood street, Back Bay, was fined $10, which he paid, for attacking Mrs. Essie Pivler, a pretty young woman living at No. 10, the same thoroughfare, in municipal court today. Mrs. Pivler alleges that Dr. Dallen seized and shook her so violently that she had a sore her arm in a sling. Mrs. Pivler was found guilty, upon the complaint of the physician, of cruelty to an animal, and her case was placed on file. The trouble arose over Spider, a Boston terrier owned by the doctor and said to be the winner of more than three hundred prizes. Spider strayed upon Mrs. Pivler's premises, and Dr. Dallen says she threw water on the dog and also cast a rock at him.

Spider was not injured, he owner says, but will never more be at dog bench show exhibition. Dr. Dallen says he called upon Mrs. Pivler to remonstrate, and that he did not shake her.

HELD ON THEFT CHARGE.

Charged with breaking and entering the dwelling of William E. J. Hudson on Shawmut avenue, Roxbury, and the larceny of clothing valued at $50, John Martin was to-day bound over to the Grand Jury.

PRIEST HERO OF THE SUGAR TRUST RIOTS

NEW YORK, July 29.—Out of the bloodshed and riot caused by the strike at the Williamsburg plant of the American Sugar Refining Company an heroic figure loomed to-day. It was Rev. Father William B. Farrell, pastor of the church of SS. Peter and Paul, who prevented further strife rioting around the plant to-day by going among the strike sympathizers while their anger was at its height.

As the result of his second display of bravery the police have given Father Farrell the title of "Hero of the Sugar Trust Strike."

While the rioting was at its height yesterday the priest appeared among the fighters and caused them to cease battling. But Father Farrell's real work was done to-day. The situation in front of the refinery was critical in the extreme. Trucks were being sent out with strike-breakers. Bottles and sticks were being thrown.

Only a few hours before men inside the refinery had fired upon a band of armed men, who approached some trucks which were to be taken out.

"We are afraid, today," was the cry of the strike sympathizers. "We are ready for trouble."

Right at this point the priest appeared among them. "Be reasonable," he said. "Wait. We will settle all this without bloodshed." His words had a marvelous effect on the crowd of 4,000 people, hundreds of whom were his parishioners.

After quieting the crowd Father Farrell went to the main offices of the Sugar Trust, No. 117 Wall street, and had a conference, lasting several hours, which was held with Vice-President Hooker of the Trust.

tives were given the plan of action to transmit to him on his arrival on the liner Laurentic, and the same details were given to the wireless for transmission to that steamship.

Dew to Hurry to Quebec.

The plan for Dew's course was mapped out yesterday by Colonel Percy Sherwood of the Dominion police and the Quebec Attorney-General at Montreal.

In this scheme was included the departure of Dew from the White Star liner at Father Point in river that he might hasten by rail to Quebec and have his powers vised by a judge of the Court of the King's Bench. This would enable Dew to retrace his steps from Quebec to Grosse Isle, where, at the immigration station, the formal arrest of the suspects, the "Rev. John Dickson and son," is to be made by Canadian officials.

The fog which yesterday began to check the progress of the Montrose was to-day held responsible by the authorities for the failure to secure a more detailed account of Crippen and his companions.

Throughout the surrounding country word of the great case has spread, and the prospect of Crippen's capture here has drawn a curious throng from farms and fishing villages in a radius of many miles. The population of this village is to-day almost double the normal.

Fifty Newspaper Men Waiting.

What with the arrangements of the fifty or so newspaper men on board of the police, there is not a power boat in the nearby waters that has not been chartered and the officials are now getting offers that to them seem fabulous.

Dr. Crippen is an American, as was his wife. He is about fifty years old. For the last fourteen years he has been identified in London with concerns which called themselves "Institutes for the cure of deafness by mail." Several of these correspondence school clinics have been exposed by London newspapers and denounced by Judges. Crippen and friends associated with him in what have been shown to be profitable enterprises were unsuccessful in libel suits directed against newspapers and individuals who attacked their reputations.

Vain and Fond of Women.

The doctor was graduated from a homeopathic school of medicine in Cleveland in 1884. He practised medicine in New York, San Diego, St. Louis and Brooklyn and for several years was employed by Munyon, the patent medicine manufacturer of Philadelphia. Munyon sent him to London, but found it necessary after a while to employ another representative. After that Crippen became interested in money making medical companies which were not looked upon with approval by reputable physicians. While he lived in the United States there was nothing against his reputation. He was regarded as an unusually intelligent man and a capable physician.

Personal friends have described him as a vain man who was fond of women and liked to boast of his successes among them. He was addicted to flashy dress—loud waistcoats and scarfs and jewelry. He made plenty of money in England, but he spent freely and was often in financial straits.

Belle Elmore Brooklyn Girl.

Belle Elmore was a Brooklyn girl, born in East Williamsburg thirty-eight years ago. Her stepfather, Frederick Messinger, lives at 685 Grove street with one of his daughters, Mrs. R. H. Mills. Belle Elmore's half sister. Belle attended school in Williamsburg and met Dr. Crippen about twenty years ago when she was visiting in a small town in northern New York with a family by whom she was employed as a governess. They were married seventeen years ago in New York city, and when Dr. Crippen went to London to work for Munyon his wife accompanied him.

She had been on the stage in this country even after her marriage and she continued to appear in the music halls in London. Belle Elmore was a handsome woman, large and of good figure. She was popular among her vaudeville acquaintances and was the treasurer of the Music Hall Artists Guild of London. Many of the members were prominent in visit Dr. and Mrs. Crippen at 39 Hilldrop Crescent, where the Crippens lived in good style.

Last Seen February 22.

A young woman named Ethel Clare Le Neve, who had been educated at a convent in France, who spoke French fluently and who posed as a French-woman, was an inmate of the house. She was a stenographer whom Crippen met in the course of a libel trial in 1905. It is known that while living with his wife he visited France, with the young woman who is attractive, and lived with her at an inn near Boulogne.

Belle Elmore's friends saw her last on the night of February 22. One of them called at the house the next day and was informed by Dr. Crippen that his wife had gone to America to obtain a legacy. The doctor said the news had come suddenly and that Mrs. Crippen had to start in haste. His story was unconvincing and suspicious was increased when Dr. Crippen appeared at a dance a few days later accompanied by the Le Neve girl, who wore a gown belonging to Mrs. Crippen and some of Mrs. Crippen's jewelry.

A short time afterward Dr. Crippen circulated a story that his wife had died of pneumonia in California. He wrote to Mrs. Crippen's relatives in Brooklyn, telling them that Belle was dead and that he was so shocked he could hardly handle a pen. He caused to be inserted in London theatrical papers notices of Mrs. Crippen's death.

The music hall artists, who were Mrs. Crippen's intimate friends, investigated quietly without going to the police. They believed that the doctor had killed his wife on June 22 they went to Inspector Froesch of Scotland Yard with their suspicions. The inspector called on Dr. Crippen and questioned him. The doctor was calm and plausible. He said that he had quarreled with his wife and that she had left him, presumably to go to her relatives in the United States. It was humiliating, he said, and he thought to cover up the situation by saying she was dead. The inspector accepted the story and left Crippen unmolested. The next day he disappeared, and so did Ethel Le Neve. A search of the house at Hilldrop Crescent then revealed the body buried in the cellar.

LITTLE BOY DYING FROM EATING WEEDS

MIDDLEBORO, July 29.—Giovanno Jardulo, the five-year-old son of Tony Jardulo of Wareham street, is dying to-day it is believed, from the effects of eating green grass and weeds in the swamp near his home. Young Jardulo, with some other small children, were playing there. The little boy was imitating one of the horses that he had seen in a recent circus here and began to eat the grass and weeds about him. In a short time he went into convulsions.

SHOE MACHINE TRUST SEEKING 7 INJUNCTIONS

A new attack came in the war on the Shoe Machinery Trust by Thomas G. Plant to-day when the United Shoe Machinery Company got busy in the United States Circuit Court in an endeavor to get injunctions against Thomas G. Plant personally and the Thomas G. Plant Company on the grounds that both were infringing on patents held by the trust. The United Shoe Machinery Company filed seven suits, Mr. Plant and his company must file an answer by September 6.

Two suits are on the so-called Grandy Patent for an improvement on lasting machines which the trust holds and which Plant individually and the Plant Co. are charged with infringing under a patent which was issued to Plant on May 17 of this year.

Two other suits relate to the Winkley patent for an improvement on welt sewing machines which the trust holds and which it alleges Plant personally and the Plant Co. are infringing under a patent granted to Plant May 17 of this year.

Two additional suits relate to the Petterill patent for an improvement on heel supports which the trust holds and which it alleges Plant individually and the Plant company are infringing under a patent granted to William C. Stewart and assigned to Plant on May 17.

The seventh suit relates to the Hadaway patent for an improvement in welting which the trust controls and which it alleges the Plant company has been infringing since May 1 of this year.

MAYOR TELLS WHY BOSTON IS HIGH COST CITY

Mayor Fitzgerald had something to say today on the Census Bureau's statement that Boston is the "highest cost" city in the world per capita, with an average of $27.50, while New York, its nearest rival, shows $24.71.

"The reason is a simple one to those who understand anything about conditions in the big cities of the country," declared this city's executive. "Boston's per capita cost is greater because Boston does more.

"Take the school department, for instance, which is the largest expense item not only in cities but in towns. The amount of money which will come out of the tax levy the present year, including the amount appropriated, sinking fund requirement for school debt and interest on the present debt, is $5,852,578.

School Per Capita.

"In addition to this about $800,000 of loan money will also be used, making Boston's schools the present year cost more than $6,000,000, or $11 per capita, against the census estimate of $2.86 in Chicago, $4.01 in Philadelphia, $5.79 in St. Louis and 3.16 in Baltimore.

"Yet it is almost impossible for any one to examine the school accounts of Boston and get a reduction which means anything.

"In charities and corrections where politics never occurred in the city of Boston, Boston's tax per capita is $3.11, against $2.03 in New York, $1.15 in St. Louis, $1.12 in Baltimore, 73 cents in Chicago and 54 cents in Philadelphia.

Fire Department.

"Boston's fire department, unlike our police department, which is the highest cost in the United States, is lower than the fire departments of Baltimore, Buffalo, Cleveland, St. Louis and Chicago, the figures being: Buffalo 14, Cleveland 10.2, Baltimore 10.2, St. Louis 9.9, Chicago 9.2, Pittsburg 9.1, Boston 8.7.

"Boston's park system and metropolitan system are unequaled in the world. No city have they cost as much per capita than our other city in the world, but the cost to more for maintenance. Therefore, if Boston is the highest cost city in the word, it is because the city has a higher ideal of civic life than any other city."

IN STOMACH TROUBLES

Where the Blood Is Thin and Weak the Tonic Treatment Is Almost Sure to Bring Permanent Relief.

In cases of weak stomach where the patient is pale and the blood thin, the first step toward restoring the activity of the stomach is to improve the condition of the blood. A supply of rich, well-oxygenated blood is necessary to the process of digestion and with it, if errors in diet are avoided, nature will work a cure. This is known as the tonic treatment for indigestion and is well illustrated by the case of Mr. Solomon Morgan, an insurance agent, of Millinocket, Me., who recently told how Dr. Williams' Pink Pills cured him of stomach trouble and hopes everyone similarly afflicted will give the pills a trial. He says:

"Through overwork I began to have trouble with my stomach which lasted for nine months. Although I tried doctors' medicines, I failed to get better until I had given Dr. Williams' Pink Pills a good trial. My stomach was weak and there were a good many things that I could not eat. I had terrible bloating spells and was frequently so dizzy that I would have to sit down. I was short of breath and had palpitation of the heart upon the least exertion. My back was lame and my legs were weak and felt played out. For two or three months I had throbbing headaches which came and went by spells.

"A few boxes of the pills helped me and after a thorough treatment with them I felt like a new person. I always have the pills in the house and occasionally take them as a tonic."

The tonic treatment with Dr. Williams' Pink Pills by building up the blood so that it contains rich and vigorous blood cells the weakened digestive system has made hundreds of cures in the most severe stomach disorders. This record of cures should merit a trial for the remedy which is guaranteed free from opiates.

If you desire further information about this treatment, send for our free booklet, "What to Eat and How to Eat."

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are also recommended for anæmia, chlorosus, rheumatism, female weakness, and headaches. They act entirely through the blood, giving tone to the digestive organs, and nourishment to exhausted nerves.

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are sold by all druggists, or will be sent, postpaid, on receipt of price, 50 cents per box; six boxes for $2.50, by the Dr. Williams Medicine Company, Schenectady, N. Y.

GIRL WHO ENDED LIFE WHEN CHIDED BY HER MOTHER

MISS RUTH BICKFORD

NOTES OF GIRL SUICIDE WILL SOLVE MYSTERY

FITCHBURG, July 29.—"Suicide by shooting" is the verdict of Medical Examiner Frederick H. Thompson in the case of pretty seventeen-year-old Ruth Bickford, who was found dead in the woods in Ashburnham, near the home of Arthur A. Shillings on Central street, where she was employed.

The girl left several notes in her room, which are in the possession of Medical Examiner Thompson, who refused to divulge their contents. "It is a case of suicide and this is hinted at in the notes, but further than that I do not care to say anything about the case just now," said Dr. Thompson.

The girl's mother and other relatives refuse to say what the notes contain, but her brother, Robert Bickford, told a reporter that there were three notes in all, one being addressed to E. W. Warren of Melrose, for whom the girl worked until a few weeks ago, her chum, Ellen Shockey, and her mother.

The note to the mother is said to contain the words "Good bye," and "When you read this I will probably not be here." In all the notes the girl spoke about different articles which she wished her friends to have.

Disturbed by Chiding.

The only reason given for her act is that the girl was greatly disturbed because of a chiding received from her mother for recent attendance at a dance in Ashby.

The mother is in an hysterical condition as a result of the tragedy.

For a few months and until a few weeks ago the girl worked for a family by the name of E. W. Warren in Melrose, in whom one of the notes which the girl left behind was addressed.

A mystery was made out of the case by instructions which Deputy Sheriff Hosmer poison left at his office, after returning from the inquest at T. W. Jones's undertaking rooms, that no one there was to discuss the case with any one who might make inquiries. Sheriff Richardson then started an investigation.

Murder Suspected.

At first it was thought it was a case of murder, because there were two bullet holes in the girl's head, but Medical Examiner Thompson said after the autopsy that the two holes were made by one bullet, which went in near the right temple and out near the left temple.

The revolver with which the girl ended her life was of .32 calibre, and was the property of Mr. Shillings. After an all-night search for the gun it was reported that revolver shots had been heard in the rear of the Shillings home. A search was made and the girl's body was found under a clump of bushes by her twin brother, Robert Bickford, with Mr. Shillings's revolver lying close beside her.

Mr. Shillings said that the girl had given him notice that she was going to leave him Saturday, as she had decided to visit relatives in New Hampshire. Mr. Shillings said the girl seemed to be in good health and she had always been most faithful while in his employ.

Miss Bickford was very popular in Ashburnham. If she had lived until Saturday she would have been eighteen years old.

MAN WITH TWO WIVES SENT UP FOR 18 MONTHS

Michael J. Hennessey was confronted with two wives in the Roxbury Police Court when arraigned before Associate Justice Cohen to-day, and, pleading guilty, was sentenced to eighteen months in the House of Correction.

His first wife, Mrs. Mary C. Hennessey of Lowell, was the complainant. The second wife was Mary A. Cantin when he married her. Both women were in court and viewed the proceedings without evincing much emotion. By the first wife Hennessey had no children. By the second wife he has an infant of five weeks and a babe of eighteen months. His first wife lives at No. 11 Chapel street, Lowell, and several weeks ago, when she failed to get money from her husband, came to Boston to investigate.

It is said he failed to send her a remittance as usual because he had lost his job as engineer in the Rossmore Hotel. Mrs. Hennessey No. 1 traced her husband to No. 14 Lamont street, Roxbury, where he lived with wife No. 2 and his children. Wife No. 1 had him arrested and he was taken into custody by Policeman Rapp of the Roxbury Crossing Station. He married wife No. 2 on December 27, 1908. That was about a month after he left wife No. 1. While Hennessey offered no defence he made a statement. He said:

"I lived with my first wife up to December 1, 1908, but to live with her was simply torture. One night I went home late when he lived in Malden, and she wouldn't let me in. When I did get to she came at me with a club. I left home a few days later and came to Boston where I got a job in the Rossmore Hotel. There I met Mary A. Cantin, who was a waitress, and I married her."

Hennessey, a middle-aged man, took his sentence calmly.

BLAMES PEOPLE FOR HIGH PRICES

With the improved conditions surrounding our working people, better times, better clothing, more expensive and more varied food supplies—all these go to make up an increased demand and a consequent increase in price. Our people of all classes are indulging themselves in amusements and matters that appeal to self-gratification. All this is commendable and desirable if the parties indulging can afford it. In many instances they cannot, and this is easily proven by a casual observance of conditions in almost any locality.—A. B. Hepburn, New York banker, in interview.

RIVET, EXECUTED, KEEPS NERVE TO THE VERY LAST

Slayer's Show of Courage Makes Execution a Notable Tragedy.

Napoleon J. Rivet was electrocuted this morning shortly after midnight at the Charlestown State Prison. At 12:12 o'clock he walked calmly to the electric chair in the death house, half a dozen steps from his cell, to pay the penalty for the murder of his friend, Joseph Gallieux of Lowell. One minute and forty seconds later Warden Bridges had lifted his black cane as a signal to the executioner, and Rivet was pronounced dead at 12:21, less than eight minutes after the current had been turned on.

Lieutenant-Governor Frothingham to-day wrote William H Best, counsel for Napoleon Rivet, declining to do anything to interfere with the execution of the sentence demned murderer, and, in the absent of Governor Draper, grant the man a reprieve. The Lieutenant-Governor says that at the hearing given to Bent July 26 in the presence of District Attorney Higgins the so-called evidence presented was not even similar to that given before the jury in the trial, but that it was pure forgery.

Last Request for Shave.

Rivet went to his death with the same show of coolness and nerve that has characterized him since the sentence of death was passed upon him. Save for sunken cheeks, which might have been caused by his confinement in the death cell during the past week, it was the Napoleon Rivet whom his family and his friends knew—always collected, always composed and always almost nonchalant. His alert was stra, his bearing erect except when the condemned eyes which never once faced those who stood in front of him as he walked to the chair.

His coolness stamped him as a wonder among criminals, the most wonderful that to come under the observation of the State prison authorities. Not a muscle twitched a quiver done in consciousness. The last request he made that he might be given a clean shave—merely that and nothing more—was indicative of his general demeanor up to the hour of death.

When when he closed the door, delegated to fattening meditation, bidding them a touching farewell as he turned to leave his cell, he showed no emotion. He caressed a book, quet of asters left by his father, who was the last of the family to see him. Still he showed no feeling.

Kisses Crucifix.

Father Malley, his spiritual adviser, held out his crucifix from his position in front of the death chair. Rivet touched it with his lips. A moment later the electric current was coursing through his body.

It was the last religious ceremony that perhaps gave the true instinct into the thoughts of the condemned man just before he stepped into eternity. A week's intimacy with Father Malley had prepared him to meet his end with great faith and hope. His devotional nature was revealed. The last night of his life he spent in prayer. Doubtless it was this that made it possible for him to meet death as he did. Religion helped him to look upon his mutilation in the face of death his usual stoicism.

In his cell he had prayed incessantly. He used his Bible and his prayer book continually during the week. Even when he walked to the death cell he held in crucifix in his hand. To the last his eyes fastened. He never once raised them. Even after he was strapped into the chair he clutched the crucifix tightly still gazing at it. Then he bowed his head in prayer to hear the final ordeal came from the sacred object.

Around his neck was a rosary of beads and medallions. A scapular, too, was suspended. The comfort of the cross and the inspiration afforded by the beads would have made the Rivet that met death in the electric chair.

On the way to the chamber of death Father Malley walked in front of the prisoner. The priest carried the crucifix high in the air, praying. His presence also seemed to lend renewed fortitude for the future in the bosom of the condemned man. The sound of the chanting Father Malley prayed audibly in French, so that Rivet might understand, and have the benefit of the last human prayer in his hearing

No Confession.

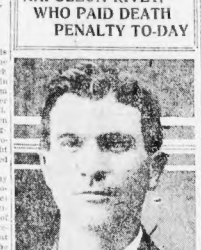
Rivet died without making a confession. Almost until the end he had protested his innocence when he talked with the prison guard.

The execution of Rivet was one of the quietest and briefest in the history of the prison—probably the shortest of any. Because of his healthy condition and stalwartness of physique a higher voltage of electricity than usual was necessary. Two thousand volts were thrown through the body of the prisoner, and 1920 volts were thrown through it. The latter current lasted for eight seconds. Then the power was sharply decreased to 1,000 volts, remaining for the next thirty seconds. For the last five seconds the current was jumped back to the full voltage.

Sixteen Witnesses.

Legal witnesses at the execution were: Dr. Charles G. Porter of Cambridge, assistant-general of the State militia; Medical Examiner George B. Magrath of Suffolk county, Dr. Joseph G. Mahoney, the prison physician; Sheriff John B. Fallon of Middlesex county; Rev. Father Augustine D. Malley, Catholic chaplain of the prison, and Rivet's spiritual adviser; Warden Benjamin F. Bridges, Deputy Warden Nathan D. Allen, and William Carroll Hill, representing the Associated

NAPOLEON RIVET, WHO PAID DEATH PENALTY TO-DAY



Waives Reading of the Death Warrant, Saying "I Am Ready!"

The suspense would have wrought any ordinary man up to the highest pitch of nervousness. For a solid week, amid the strain of four days of waiting—waiting for the anger of death to point him out, while a human being living—

"Rivet, are you ready?"

But with Rivet to wait has no. At no time was nervousness apparent. Not once has Rivet been seen to blanch, and last night when, after the jury had been out fully five minutes and reported a verdict of "guilty in the first degree," the judge announced the sentence. Then Rivet's face turned ashen pale. The knees which this morning had failed him at the sight of his chocks, and the lines of hope in his breast, and the strength of hope in his soul.

Until within a few hours of Saturday Rivet was sounding his time calmly as ever in his cell. He had given up all hope. He was resigned as far as the question of death to death have ever been. Probably he is without parallel in the annals of criminology. He knew his time was short, but he did not know the hour. Accordingly, he did not care very much. He might be living to-day for all he knew.

Priest With Him for Hours.

At twilight Father Malley entered his cell. The kind priest had been with him at different times during the week, and Rivet's face came to life out with the doomed man the rest of his life, to give him spiritual consolation, to administer to his every mental and the holy communion.

Rivet saw the priest file out of his cell. It faded away gradually. The day dies slowly. Perhaps Rivet, in a moment of meditation, remembered the fact, for it was that was to be his. Death by electricity is swift, but it was not the swiftness that filled Rivet been less the man of courage he was, he would have died a thousand deaths throughout the time he has been in the death cell. His ordeal in the electric chair is soon over with. A man can battle with his thoughts, but the fear of physical torture is terrible, there is hope of victory in securing peace in the comfort of religion.

But there is no battling with the death that is dealt in the chair. Rivet has been guided in copper wires. For most men convicted of murder, death by hanging is desired, because it is easy and the better is the briefest.

The Death Knell.

In his cell, with the priest by his side, Rivet forgot to count the fleeting hours. Midnight struck. The last stroke sounded. It was the death knell.

A little later the guard touched Rivet on the back. "Rivet, are you ready?"

Then, the prisoner knew the long expected had come. The uncertainty was over. The old mate to be faced.

"Rivet, you are not going to die to-night." That was a note cast in a joyous trolley, a major key. Rivet knew differently. That was a note in a minor key. It was the death knell, and it sounded March Sand, with only a memory of the music.

Rivet knew his time had come. The full period was to be written shortly to the minute. He had only to wait for the call to file at the career of Napoleon J. Rivet.

"I am ready."

The reply to the guard showed the revolution that had been worked in the man, through the misfortune of his life. He was prepared for death. He was ready to meet his maker.

Rivet was quickly dressed in an outing shirt, apparently of blue flannel, and gray trousers, with a slit in the left leg, through which one of the electrodes was to be thrust when he got into the chair.

Offers No Resistance.

Rivet probably noticed the slit and thought it was a long, for he was acquainted with all the details of death by electricity. The spot of the shoe of a silver dollar which had been shaved bald he reasoned out to be connected in some way with his death.

He wore low shoes unlaced, and white socks. He was smooth shaven, for his last request to make, Rivet made reply:

"I simply want a close shave."

His request was granted.

After he was fully dressed the guard asked:

"Rivet, do you want the death warrant read to you?"

He shook his head, to say that the formality was not necessary.

Rivet was led first by the triple death watch, assisted by two extra officers. But the guard was not needed. Rivet was approachable, and offered no resistance. He was strapped in the chair quickly and without difficulty. He was still talking during the proceedings. But kept his eyes on his crucifix. He raised them but once, and then toward the crucifix Father Malley held out to him to kiss. He turned his head to his own crucifix immediately after. No look from the man saw his eyes, as he never looked toward the witnesses.

The Signal of Death.

The most pathetic incident was when Father Malley dropped to his knees, and prayed in French, and crossed himself many times.

Warden Bridges watched Rivet closely. He observed his breathing, so as to catch the moment there was a pause. Then the body is weakest and offers less resistance after the lungs are freed of air.

Warden Bridges lifted the black, gold-headed cane he carried. This was the signal of death. The supreme moment had come.

A greenish blue light flashed at the electric switch board. The electricity flew from electrode to electrode. A straightening of the fingers, an involuntary twitch of the muscles, a quiver, and Napoleon Rivet was dead.

RIVET'S LAWYER STILL CONTENDS HE WAS INNOCENT

LOWELL, July 29.—William H. Best, attorney for Napoleon J. Rivet, who was executed to-day at the Charlestown State Prison, is still proclaiming the innocence of the man. Attorney Best says:

"There is absolutely no question in my mind as to the innocence of Napoleon J. Rivet and I am firmly convinced that he was the victim of an unfortunate combination of circumstances. Sooner or later, I firmly believe, the truth will be known and the name of Napoleon J. Rivet will be vindicated."

HOME RULE SEEMS ASSURED FOR IRELAND

LONDON, July 29.—Home Rule for Ireland and Scotland as well, as an imperial Parliament, with representatives from all of the colonies, is the next and most important step in England's progressive political program, which now holds the world's attention during the next year. It is said that the House of Lords will be curtailed as to power and that other vital matters concerning the home rule bill have already been practically agreed upon by the leaders of both parties in Parliament, who have been in conference since it met.

It is believed that the conference will reach an agreement concerning the veto power of the House of Lords, which is the principal reason for them getting together in committee, as it were, instead of preventing discussion by throwing the matter directly into Parliament, and that the bill will curtail the hereditary powers of the members of the House of Lords in the government of the people.

But when the leading members of the party met and began to discuss the affairs of government they were surprised to find that the House of Lords was not the only one in the United States would in platform taking.

According to the informant of the correspondent of the BOSTON AMERICAN Ireland was seemingly considered in shape for the imperial bill, and it was also decided to place Ireland and the Irish under the control of a grant committee, so that the Irish would have the same rights in matters, and instead of being separate from the British Empire would be more closely welded to it. This action, it is said, was agreed would be extended to Scotland.

ASQUITH NOT READY FOR ANNOUNCEMENT OF ANY AGREEMENT

LONDON, July 29.—The failure of the Lords' veto conference, which has been held by the party leaders, and a renewal of the great parliamentary battle was suggested as a possibility to-day in the House of Commons in an announcement by Premier Asquith.

Premier Asquith announced that twelve meetings of the conference had been held "At not no agreement has been reached," he said. "The meetings will be continued, and if any decision is reached it will be announced in the present session of parliament. If there is no prospect of an agreement that can be announced at this session, the conference will be closed."

TUTTLE DOUBTS WISDOM OF NEW MILK RATE LAW

President Tuttle of the Boston & Maine railroad today declares very plainly that he doubts the wisdom of the new rate schedule which applies to the shipment of milk in this State, whereby the same freight rate is to be paid on milk, whether in a single can or a car or trainload. At the same time he declares "the Boston & Maine will obey the law in Massachusetts."

Where the new State law's provisions are to be tested is as to its application to carload lots coming into this State from other States. The Boston milk contractors have selected as the test case question as to whether the open car system shall prevail in interstate milk shipping is to be argued before the Interstate Commerce Commission.

President Tuttle says that the Boston & Maine milk freight rates are now lower than those demanded in New York, but are higher than the carload rates formerly paid by the so-called contractors. The president says that his road will bow to the new law and milk will be sold without discrimination whether "just" or "unjust." His statement follows:

"Laws Should Be Repealed."

"The Boston & Maine Railroad has long believed that all milk transportation laws should be repealed and that milk should be transported in cans. Consequently the other commodities, without "unjust and undue discrimination," and it was with this intention and regulation of our Railroad Commission. This method of treating the milk traffic has been recommended by the Railroad Commission more than once. It is a universal custom in every carload lot of merchandise at a less rate per pound than single parcels. This is universally held in the courts to be a "just and due discrimination."

"The Legislature, however, this year determined that milk should be carried without any discrimination, whether "just" or "unjust," and provided that the same rate should apply whether in carload lots or in single cans. This so-called "open car system" is in use in New York and differs radically from the system heretofore in use in New England.

Will Obey the Law.

"The 'open car' system having been adopted practically unanimously by the last legislature, the Boston & Maine railroad has prepared to obey the law, although doubting its wisdom, and has arranged a tariff for its service which is upon the New York basis. The rates in force in New York have been fixed by order of the Interstate Commerce Commission, and the Boston & Maine railroad has adopted these rates exactly as ordered by the Interstate Commerce Commission, except that it has made them a little lower than the New York rates. These rates are higher than the carload rates paid by the so-called 'milk contractors' and some others on the Boston & Maine railroad, but are lower than the rates now used by individual producers."

MINISTER WHO LEAVES PULPIT FOR BIG STORE

REV. DAVID F. ATHERTON

ALDRICH HITS AT BRISTOW

PROVIDENCE, July 29.—For the first time since he has been under bombardment by Senator Bristow of Kansas, and other insurgent members of the upper chamber of Congress, Senator Nelson W. Aldrich has hit back.

"That man Bristow is telling a pack of lies on me," declared the man who for nearly twenty years has been the boss of the United States Senate. There was bitterness in his voice. His brown eyes snapped fire.

"He has told so many lies—he manufactured them so rapidly—that I would not know where to begin should I take notice of him and enter denials."

Political supporters of Senator Aldrich say that because of the violent attacks made upon him since the adjournment of Congress—attacks that even include his personal honor as senator—he probably will yield to their insistence and remedy his recently expressed wish not to be re-elected. They are heralding upon his return to Washington with the vindication of a constitutional law he has served nearly thirty years and go after his detractors in that body.

More AMERICANS are read in the homes in Boston than any other paper.

WIFE SURVIVES HER HUSBAND 4 WEEKS

BROCKTON, July 29.—Mrs. Caroline N. Mackey, widow of William Mackey, died at the home of her daughter, Mrs. John F. Tuner, aged seventy-eight. Mrs. Mackey's death came exactly four weeks after Mr. Mackey's death. Mrs. Mackey had been impressed from the time that she might live to care for him as long as he lived, and then she would be ready to go.

SMALL SALARY DRIVES PASTOR TO BUSINESS

"No, the ministry does not pay. The average clergyman gets but little more than $600 annually, which is pretty small wages after a man spends years in college and the schools of theology. He then is ordained, and it is an uphill fight for him unless he is very fortunate."

This is the belief of the Rev. David F. Atherton, who has just resigned the pastorate of the North Congregational Church at North Abington to become a floor manager of a Boston department store. He declares that there is nothing so interesting as business life.

Mr. Atherton, seen to-day at his desk, was attired in a business suit and appeared to be an expert in handling help. Hundreds of young women are under his charge, and he is very popular among them.

The former pastor declared that he could do as much good work in the business world for the public as he did while in the ministry.

"I do not intend to give up preaching altogether," he said, "occasionally I may occupy pulpits at various churches. There is always an opportunity for a clergyman to fill a vacant pulpit, and every chance I get I will do so."

When asked why he resigned to enter the business world, Mr. Atherton said: "For the past four years I have contemplated entering some large mercantile house. When the opportunity presented itself I took advantage of it. Of course, it is quite hard for me as a church, but the salary of a minister now does not satisfy the average man with an education and who has prospects for the future.

"Reports show that the average minister receives $600 per annum, which is hardly enough to support him. In fortunes a rich wealthy man does not pay. Of course, in the ministry we love our work, but we have our wives to live, despite that fact."

Mr. Atherton still makes his home at North Abington, where he resides with his wife. He has no children. While preaching in that town he was very popular and made a host of friends.

Mr. Atherton was educated at Bowdoin College, where he received his degree. Later he went to Bangor Theological School, and after graduation was ordained to the ministry nine years ago.

LINER RAN DOWN BOSTON FISHER

Run down and nearly sunk by the Red Star liner Finland, commanded by Capt. Banks, the Boston fishing schooner Bellona P. Domingos has docked at T wharf, after a voyage that came very near being her last.

Though her bowsprit was carried away, her topmasts broken off and her bows crushed in by the collision, the schooner made her way to the Banks without assistance, lacking at every sense. Commanded by Capt. Domingos, the remnant of the fishing craft, steered the vessel's officers that he could reach port in her shattered condition, although the steamer lay for five hours he refused to accept aid from her.

NEW ENGLAND PRAISES FIGHT FILM CRUSADE

New England lawmakers are flocking to the standard of anti-prize fighting. They declare it is demoralizing and degrading. They assert that this is a good time to banish it for ever from the country. Governors, United States Senators, congressmen and other officials are practically solid against the so-called sport and are not an exhibition of pictures of it.

Orrin J. Dickey, secretary and treasurer of the Waldo County Agricultural Society in Maine, writes:

"I shall be pleased to enroll with the members of the National League of Lawmakers to stop Prize Fighting. Mr. Hearst has certainly started a movement which should have the support of all workers for morality in the land. The BOSTON AMERICAN is certainly doing a great deal of good, and the fine editorials are of great assistance to the people."

Approval From the Navy.

R. B. Bradford, Rear Admiral of the United States Navy, says he is in sympathy with the movement. He is now at Turner, Maine.

George C. Wing, of Auburn, Me., writes in this vigorous fashion:

"I am utterly and unalterably opposed to prize fighting and the brutalities which inevitably follow in the wake of such exhibitions and I might go further and say that I do not in any way approve of any athletic exhibitions in college or out that result in unmanly and disfiguring and buising form.

"If two men on the street engage in an altercation through heated blood, supposed injury or otherwise only half a minute is necessary to determine the merits of the matter man. Encounters of this kind are to be deplored, but the effects from them are nothing compared with the studied brutality occupying hours and a succession of rounds." Whatever influence I have will be exerted along these lines."

Mayor Gaynor Denounced.

NEW YORK, July 29.—A representative audience of earnest men and women from religious and civic organizations throughout the city assembled in Cooper Union and roundly denounced Mayor Gaynor for not taking such official action as would close the places of amusement where prize fight pictures are being exhibited.

The meeting was held under the auspices of the Anti-Immoral Moving Picture Association. The Rev. J. Emery Price, pastor of the Washington Heights Methodist Episcopal church, acted as chairman.

Resolutions were adopted which urge Governor Hughes to take up the cause of suppressing prize fight pictures, not only in New York city but throughout the State. A vote of thanks was extended to all of the Honest heroes who gave the support they have given the movement.

Oliver, assistant secretary of war, will spend most of his month's vacation, beginning to-day, in the saddle. General Oliver is 59 years old. His first task will be a 250-mile horseback ride from Fort Wingate, N. M., to the Moqui and Navajo Indian reservations. Miss Oliver, his daughter, will accompany him.

A Godsend to Sickly Children

Mr. N. L. Duffee's little baby girl made healthy and fat after she had been so puny and weak she was not expected to live.

The baby's thankful father wrote as follows: "Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey is the finest of medicines. I have a girl baby now 5 months old who until she was 2 months old we hardly saw any chance of raising her. At that time I procured a bottle of Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey and gave her a few drops at a time. Now she is acknowledged to be the finest looking baby in town. Baby is still growing as fat as a pig." N. L. DUFFEE, Helena, Ala.

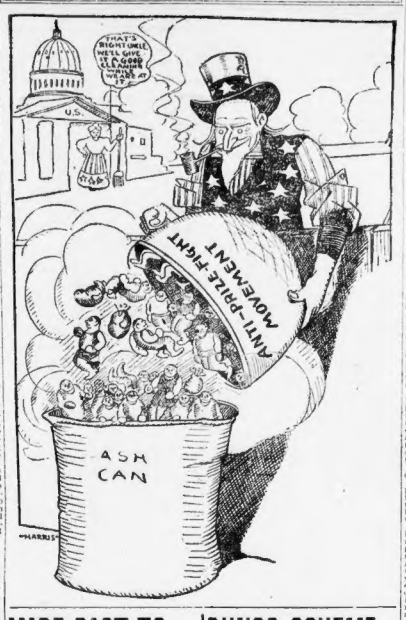
GOOD-BYE, FIGHTERS



MADE PACT TO WED BARONESS

CINCINNATI, July 29.—Percy Proctor, member of a wealthy Cincinnati family, appeared suddenly in court here and faced his wife, the former Baroness Ina Klifuss, for the first time in many months. Upon his failure to recognize her, his wife promptly swooned.

Proctor instituted the case to stop the transfer of $40,000 worth of stock which his wife claims was given her in further[illegible] of a marriage contract, made in Berlin before the American consul. By this agreement, which Proctor acknowledged, he was to settle upon her $40,000, the marriage to take place when she had divorced the Baron von Klifuss. Shortly thereafter, however, the Baron died.

Proctor, acknowledged the contract and says he gave her $40,000 in full settlement. Her family asked for "something tangible," he said, so he put up the stock was registered, and the marriage took place in London, October 14, 1909.

STEEPLE-JACK ON PERILOUS RIDE

Balanced upon a strip of board, six inches wide a daring steeple-jack worked his way down along a wire guy rope attached to the derrick at the top of the new Mission Church towers, 500 feet to the street, while nearly a thousand spectators watched the feat from below.

His perilous journey was undertaken in order that he might carry a new cable wire along through time attached to the wire guy rope on the way down. The cable rope was later taken down, leaving the one placed in position by the daring workman as its substitute.

WASHINGTON, July 29.—The battleship North Dakota, the American navy's newest and greatest Dreadnought, will go to sea Monday on a "shaking down" cruise, and for a month her 22,000 tons will do actual sea service to smooth down her engines. Her cruise is expected to end about September 5, after which she will join the Atlantic fleet for target practice and duty.

WOMEN STUNNED AS FOUNTAIN EXPLODES

Bombarded by flying fragments of wood and iron, four Cambridge women escaped severe injuries in a remarkable manner, when the soda fountain in the store at No. 910 Hampshire street, owned by Miss E. M. Carter, exploded, wrecking the establishment and hurling the persons in it at the time about the room.

The clutches of the Boston police fell upon John H. Hall, a man with a career abroad, who is charged with taking two New London, Ct., sisters through New Hampshire inspecting "his great real estate holdings," and then bunoozing them out of $30,000 of their property.

Great tracts of land, farm land, forest land, hills and dales, he is said to have pointed out to the credulous women as his own. His real estate in Boston alone he claimed to exceed $100,000.

The sisters, Jeanette M. and Nettie A. Reed, who inherited the real estate, and had no thought of disposing of it, were finally induced by the smooth talk and apparent liberality of the man, to transfer to him all the deeds to their property. He then disappeared.

They placed their case in the hands of a private investigator, who traced Hall to Boylston place in this city, where he was arrested by two headquarters' inspectors.

MARIETTA, Pa., July 29.—There being no outward sign that his potatoes were coming up, William Strickler concluded that the seed silver was dear, and decided to plant the two-acre potato patch in tobacco, and accordingly started to replow it. Strickler intends to harvest the crop for seed purposes, trusting the tubers to reproduce their kind and add to the scientific crop list of modern farming the anti-bug potato

MOVE TO PROBE EXPRESS RATES AND METHODS

In behalf of one hundred and twenty-three commercial organizations, John W. Griggs and Benjamin L. Fairchild have presented a petition to the Interstate Commerce Commission, charging that the express companies operating in the United States ask exorbitant rates for services rendered to shippers, that they have practically eliminated competition among themselves, and that they practice undue favoritism to those in control of certain railroad companies.

An investigation of the methods of the various express companies is asked by the petitioners, in order that the commission may prescribe reasonable rates and regulations.

Among the petitioners are the Boston Chamber of Commerce, the New York Merchants' Association, the Chicago Association of Commerce and many other representative bodies in the leading cities of country.

"The express business as it has developed in the United States has been and is now conducted on a basis of charges that is unreasonable and unjust to a degree that amounts to extortion, flagrant and continuous," the petition reads.

The petition continues: "Contracts between the express companies uniformly provide a compensation to the railroad company for the express privilege of approximately 50 per cent of the gross receipts of the express company, and as numerous large shippers pay the express rates that are agreed upon, received by the railroad company affords it an excessive rate over the first-class freight rate."

It also calls attention to the large dividends paid by the express companies.

The money order service is scored in the petition, the claim made that postings are ignored and regarding a dozen contracts be examined the following language is used to express the desires and feelings of those behind the movement:

"To the end that these practices may be fully understood and corrected and just and reasonable charges established, these petitioners ask that this honorable commission include in the scope of the investigation herein prayed for, an examination of the origin and terms of each and all of said contracts for express privilege and a full disclosure of the names of the stockholders, each of said express companies, particularly as to express company stocks held by railroad companies, their officers and agents."

She wants the custody of her two boys, Henry Hooker Rubber, Jr., and Donald, aged five and three, respectively. She also asks for a $20,000 attachment on her husband's property.

"DIED BY OWN HAND" IS RAWN VERDICT

CHICAGO, July 29.—The coroner's jury investigating the death of Ira G. Rawn, president of the Monon Railway, returned the following verdict early to-day: "Ira G. Rawn came to his death at his home in Winnetka on July 29 as the result of hemorrhage made by a bullet from his own revolver held in his own hand. Whether death was accidental or with suicidal intent this jury is unable to determine, but the position of the wound and the type of the revolver make the accidental theory less probable."

100 GUESTS FLEE FIRE IN MAINE HOTEL

SOUTH HARPSWELL, Me., July 29.—One hundred guests were driven panic-stricken from Merrows Inn by fire early to-day, which destroyed the hotel and the Summer cottage of Charles Pinkham close by. The guests formed a bucket brigade, and with water drawn from the wells of adjoining houses and from Casco Bay prevented the fire from spreading. It is believed no one was hurt.

But for the efforts of the Summer visitors of the Auburn colony the cottages of the Summer people would have been wiped out. Many of the hotel guests saved only what personal property they could snatch up.

The fire started from some unknown cause in the hotel and spread rapidly to the Pinkham cottage. That no one was burned or injured in the mad rush that the guests of the hotel made to get out is surprising.

At one time it looked as though the entire Bay Line would be completely wiped out.

The two buildings destroyed and their contents were valued at $5,000. The hotel is conducted by Herbert Merrill.

To show their appreciation of the work done by the Boston Floating Hospital in caring for sick babies and to add their mite to the funds being collected for that purpose, the members of the Yama Yama Girls' Club, an organization of girls in the Mission Hill District of Roxbury, will present a comedy entitled "The Gypsy Camp" this evening in the hall at No. 11 Darling street, Roxbury. The proceeds will be turned over to the treasurer of the Boston Floating Hospital fund.

The names of the girls, whose ages range from eleven to fourteen years, are Eleanor V. Lee, Gertrude McDonald, Ella V. Shea, Gwendolyn O'Leary, Mary D. Shea, Grace D. Loftus and Marion C. Fitzgerald. All are clever entertainers and have appeared in numerous performances in the district.

Unusual Interest is manifested by the young folks of the Parker Hill section of Roxbury in the efforts of the young women, and the number of tickets paid for and in circulation augurs well for the success of the undertaking. The indications are that a substantial sum of money will be realized.

WILL PAY ITS MEN DURING LAY-OFF

Notices have been posted at the Malden and Melrose factories of the Boston Rubber Shoe Company to the effect that the twenty-eight employes laid off were to receive an allowance of $5 per week in the cases of the younger men. No limit was set for the time this sum would be paid to the older men. The high price of rubber is said to have occasioned the layoff.

WIFE PLEASED BY DEFEAT OF LONGWORTH

WASHINGTON, July 29.—There is one prominent young person in the United States who is not the least bit disappointed in the nomination out in Ohio of Warren G. Harding, if the verdict of her friends is to be taken, and that is Mrs. Alice Roosevelt Longworth, wife of Congressman Nicholas Longworth.

Much has been written about Mrs. Longworth's enthusiasm for politics and deep interest in her husband's career, but, although Mrs. Longworth has never permitted herself to be interviewed, it is common talk among her friends that she had no desire to see her husband's name go up as a candidate to oppose Governor Harmon.

Her friends declare Mrs. Longworth could only see a Winter residence in Columbus and a summer spent at some little Ohio resort, where the chief executive of the State could keep in touch with its affairs far better than from the North shore of Newport.

Mrs. and a Summer spent at some little Longworth's friends that she is keen for the political fate of her father, Ex-President Roosevelt, and for the value of her husband's seat in Congress; but Ohio all the year round did not look alluring.

GIRL DROVE AUTO INTO TREE; HURT

PORTSMOUTH, N. H., July 29.—A large touring car, containing Duncan H. McIntosh and his sister, Miss Anne McIntosh, was traveling along South street at a good clip, when it got beyond control of the young woman, who was learning to drive, and struck a tree.

McIntosh was thrown head first through the glass wind shield and badly cut about the face and hands and also may have sustained internal injuries.

The young lady was much luckier, as she only received a bad shaking up and sustained a dislocated thumb.

MALDEN POLICEMAN BEATEN BY GANG

Patrolman James A. Long of the Malden police was badly beaten by a gang in the neighborhood of Suffolk square, Malden, one arrest being made after residents of the district and other policemen had rescued the officer.

Rollo Murray, seventeen, of Ashton street, Everett, was booked at the station house for assault on Long after the others fled. It is said that the gang terrorized the district and it was when the policeman tried to stop the practice that the members attacked him.

$300,000 HOME FOR SENATOR ALDRICH

NEW YORK, July 29.—Senator Nelson W. Aldrich has awarded contracts for the erection of a country home to cost more than $300,000 on his property at Warwick Neck, R. I. Work will begin on the residence within a few days, and it will be a three-story structure, nearly 300 feet in length, and will be of the old-fashioned country house type. In addition to the home, there will be a large garage, stable, servants' quarters, gatehouses and lodges.

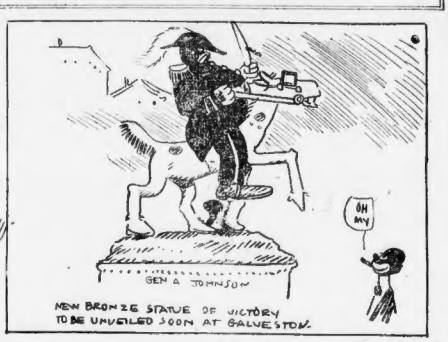
JOE GANS, FAMOUS FIGHTER, REPORTED DYING IN ARIZONA

"Lil' Artha" Now An Artists' Model :: :: :: :: :: :: :: By Tad



CHAMPION JOHNSON POSES FOR SCULPTOR

By TAD.

NEW YORK, July 29.—Little A. Johnson, an artist model? On the level, are you sure as you're a foot high.

Met Arthur on the street the other day and he was going like a Broadway express. "What's up," I asked. "Got to meet my sculptor at 9:30," answered Arthur.

"You're what?"

"My sculptor, I engaged to do me up in mud," he piped.

We took a stroll up to Arthur's apartments, and sure enough there was the Michael Angelo of Mulberry street awaiting him.

Arthur stripped, got over on the big box, and, as serious as anything you ever saw or heard of, posed for over two hours.

He's having a life-sized bust of himself made, and for the past two weeks he has been posing daily from 9 to 11 every morning.

Now you talk about serious guys and the like, this Johnson person is the most serious plug that ever lived. He's a great kidder in the clinches of our best—a great sander in a fight, a funny guy to talk to and all that, but there are two things that he's serious about and there's no humoring on him on those. One is that big fiddle he has, called the bass viol. He plays that with as much feeling as Paderewski ever did, and as for his pooling, he's a beaut and soul in it.

Heard that he intended having a heroic figure of himself modelled for the city of Galveston. Pretty soon we'll hear of him being on the new pennies.

GANS DYING, NO HOPE LEFT

BALTIMORE, July 29.—A telegram received to-day from Arizona announces that Joe Gans is on the point of death in that State.

The fighter went to Arizona several months ago, suffering with tuberculosis.

He's but a mere hulk of the perfect physical fighter of a few years ago.

Before and After the Game

By A. H. C. MITCHELL.

When a team like the Red Sox, which is fighting to get the lead in the American League race and eventually win the pennant—when a team like that loses two straight games we pause to gasp and then begin to ask questions. What was the trouble in that last game? No one speculations the fielding qualities of the Speed Boys and after those last inning misfires, when they got the bases loaded both times, no one will deny that they are not working hard. But the trouble with that last game seems to be they try to make too many runs at once.

Early in the season they lost several close games to the Athletics because they wanted to pile the runs up all at one time. They were not satisfied to slowly overcome a lead when they had eight or nine batting to go.

That was the trouble yesterday.

The New Yorks started out with a lead of three runs. Then when the Red Sox came to bat they simply didn't play the game. The first man led off with a hit. Why not sacrifice him to second and take a chance of scoring a run? Instead, they tried right away to get back those three runs by slugging. Several times early in the game our fellows had the same chance. Perhaps they would make one attempt to bunt, but they quickly shifted and, as a result, although they got the first man on frequently, their chances were thrice killed off by double plays.

This team of ours knows it can hit the ball and the boys want to hit it all the time. Speedy as they are, they fail to bunt when a bunt is altogether the proper play.

The foregoing is in answer to about 1,000 fans who have stopped the writer on the street and want to know what the trouble is. If you don't like the answer ask someone else. Maybe I'm wrong.

Thirteen hits and only four runs off Quinn—one in the first, one in the second, two in the third, three in the fifth, two in the sixth, two in the seventh and two in the ninth. Quinn's real name is Devlin and he's a Pole.

Mr. Frank Farrell, president and owner of the New York American League Baseball Club, is here and will remain until the close of the series on Saturday. Mr. Farrell avoids Boston, but the fight for second place between his club and the Red Sox was too much for him and he simply had to come over. Mr. Farrell is very well pleased with the results of the games so far. He says Hal Chase will be here tomorrow to play first base.

By A. H. C. MITCHELL.

Will there be another heart-breaking game at the Huntington avenue grounds to-day and if so will the Red Sox win it? These New Yorkers are putting up such a stiff game of ball that it is necessary to hedge a little bit and not be so cocksure of walking off with the series.

If there are anyone of those hair-raising ninth innings such as we have been served in all three of the New York games our baseball public will simply have to knock off going to the grounds. The strain will positively be too great. But it is expected the fans can last through the week. Then the Red Sox start West and things can go on in the calm and easy manner of a chess match.

Joe Wood may be able to pitch to-day. Joe's speed is something terrific to judge by the way he is burning the ball in practice, but whether he has control after so long an absence from the rubber is something that a regular performance will have to demonstrate. Manager Carrigan seems to hesitate about giving Frank Arellanes a chance, but may have to if Wood is not ready.

Red Sox Trying Hard.

An attendance of more than 8,000 after a double-header shows how worked up the Boston fans are and if the Speed Boys had won the last two games instead of losing them the attendance to-day would be easily twice that of yesterday.

That the Red Sox are trying their hardest goes without saying and the pick of baseball is bound to go their way again before long. Losing two to the Highlanders is now to be disgrace, but when a team like the Speed Boys is trying for the pennant and sets within striking distance of the leaders the home fans expect them to win every game. This cannot be done springs eternal in the baseball fan's breast—one might say human breast, but baseball fans are not human. They are raving maniacs. And so there will be another crowd out to-day rooting for the Red Sox.

The solution is this: The Red Sox still hold second place by a full game, but will drop into third place if they lose this afternoon. The Athletics lost again yesterday and still remain five full games ahead of the Bostons. The New Yorks simply tightened up on the leaders, making the American League still more close. The Detroit Tigers are back on their grounds and will again bear watching. They are not out of it by any means.

NEW YORK, July 29.—The Braves crossed the bridge and will start a four-game series with the Giants, playing a single contest this afternoon and a double-header to-morrow. It's an innovation to hold a double-header on the Polo grounds on a Saturday, but the management for once is going to give the fans a bargain entertainment on the half-holiday and a big swarming to the park is expected.

In spite of being the full-leaders, the Doves have roused the Giants more scrap than any other club in the league, and the series between them stands a tie, with five games apiece.

M'KINNON BATTLES MARTIN TO-NIGHT

Before going to Manchester yesterday, where he will meet Terry Martin to-night, Bill McKinnon, the Roxbury middleweight, accepted an offer from the Pastime A. C. of Portland to meet Jack Fitzgerald of Philadelphia next Monday night.

McKinnon is in prime shape for his contest with Martin and is confident as he ever was before a bout that he will defeat the Salisbury Terry. Martin is in good condition, too, and feels that he will win, although he will have a hard uphill job on account of the weight he is conceding McKinnon.

Jimmy Moran and Kid Rian have reported at the Lenox Athenæum to shape for a bout quarrel of eight rounds. A preliminary between local champions will open the show.

FRIENDS WANT JEFF TO KEEP FROM RING

By ED. W. SMITH.

Silence is the thing most desired from James J. Jeffries by his real friends at the present time. Jim's latest outburst about there having been "something wrong" with the fight meets with only looks from his old pals and a laugh from those who were stung into betting on him in his recent fiasco with Big Czenso.

Maybe Jeff didn't mean it exactly the way it looked in type. The world knows there was something wrong, but the world also is pretty well convinced that the fault entirely was Jeff's and that nobody else had any hand in putting the quietus on business when the afternoon of the great national holiday rolled around.

If Jeff cannot understand just what was the matter and is harboring any dark suspicions or has a single fact upon which to base anything dark, let him out with it right away and let's look into it. Other wise Jeff is merely making a bad case a little worse by hinting and then relapsing into silence again. The silence first without the bluff would have been the right dip for this big fellow.

No Chance for Jeffries.

There isn't a chance in the world of Jeffries ever making another fight with any degree of success. The big black man "had his goat," if ever there was such a thing, and has it yet and ever will have it. That's what was wrong with the battle.

Jeffries trained too long and had too much chance to think over the whole situation. When the picture in the mirror of that big black man whipping his brother Jack drifted into his mind twenty times a day as the hour for facing the same caliber as his model there is a awful thing drew near, the goat took his departure, for Big Casino's training camp and there remained.

It is idle to talk about another match between the big men. The situation that brought about their first meeting was ideal to set the entire civilized world by the ears. The battle was fought and the result, while a mendacious disputation set and a cruel source of humiliation to the white race, was absolutely true and beyond cavil or question. The better man won that day, the better man that day and the better man five years ago or five years hence.

Johnson Best Man.

So what's the use of talking Johnson has it on Jeffries and probably always did. Surely he always will. There wasn't a thing false about the Reno fight except the that mental collapse of Jeffries that may call it. No dope was used in Jeff's food or water and there wasn't anything fixed or faked. If there ever was a hint of such a thing it went glimmering long before it came to a point where there was anything tangible about it.

Everything possible was done for Jeffries and he got the best of care during every minute of the time he was in training. He wouldn't box enough in his training, but that was an opposition of his own, which probably he regrets sincerely now. Perhaps the ego is still so large that there is no regret.

At any rate, Johnson showed such marked superiority that afternoon under the scorching heads that the only question left was the result. Jeffries could make trouble if he submitted to the inevitable and didn't try to cast suspicion on the faithful followers.

GOLF GOSSIP CLUB NOTES

The Newport golf club has its trials and tribulations, too, for there is a strike among the caddies, who demand three dollars a week instead of one. Never in the history of the course has there been such a catastrophe, and it is only by great effort that the Rules remain open and that the loneliness of the organization can be alleviated to.

H. G. Richards, of St. Andrews, New York, and one of the team of "Rovers" who lost the mountains of prizes every year, by their great ability with the stick, won the championship of the South Shore club recently, defeating J. A. Hall 3 and 2. Mr. Richards is a well known New York player, and his advance in golf is becoming marked.

Harry Legg, of Mishkahda, an assistant playing in the Western Amateur championship at the Mishkahda golf club, Minn., is showing the experienced Chicago players on the field that he is very nearly supreme. In his home course, his two 70's in the qualifying round for a total of 140, was better by five strokes than his nearest competitor, W. Willis Jones, of Minneapolis.

If his match play can be of the same caliber as his medal, there is a chance for Charles Evans, Jr., of Edgewater, who won the title last year, to be lost in the fog. Legg won his first match with H. P. Reed of St. Paul, by the large margin 7 and 5.

It is not often that a match will go over two or three extra holes. In the Western championship however, which is on this week, C. T. Jaffrey of Mishkahda defeated Chester Stanley of Indianapolis only after the latter player had taken him to the 25th green.

Records were smashed at the Eastern Professional championship tournament, the Scarsdale links, N. Y., earlier in the week, particularly on the first day's play, when Jesse Mackie, of Fox Hills, trimmed the former record by 72. This however was not sufficient for the day, and Jack Hobens, Englewood, tore off a 70.

ATHLETES ON OUTING.

The members of the Brookline Municipal Gymnasium hold their fourth outing of the season at Sunnasket yesterday, more than 100 making the trip. Prizes for the new swimming strokes, races, a water polo game and exhibitions of high diving made up the program of aquatic sports.

METS AND LYNN FIGHT FOR LEAD

There has been quite a shifting about of the homes in the classification for the fourth section of the Interstate series of Combination Park tomorrow afternoon. There are also quite a number of new ones to connect the different clubs.

The Metropolitan Club is depending upon Chaney Sears's tall gelding Chase (2.07¼) to take the measure of the Lynn crowd. The fellowmen. If Chase succeeds in turning the trick the Charles River contingent are confident that they will be able to cut down the Shawmutter pool and join the pace for the big race for honors. But betimes they are counting their chickens before they are hatched, as the other clubs are likely to have a few that are not looked for. The entries:

CLASS A, TROTTING—Arthur Bee, L.; Mac Greer, E.; General C., Q.; Baron Patch, M.

CLASS B, PACING—Moolmont, L.; Owl Eye, E.; Maid E., Q.; Dandy King, B.; Sam Fulton, M.

CLASS C, TROTTING—De Soto, L.; Pat, E.; Coon Prince, Q.; Carl C., B.; Dan, M.

YANKEES MAY MEET GIANTS

NEW YORK, July 27.—New York baseball fans are agitating a series of games between the Highlanders and the Giants when the American and National Leagues close, for they are gradually losing confidence that either will capture a pennant, particularly so now that the season is more than half over and both many games behind the leaders.

The two clubs have never played either an auto or post-season series. At times there has been a great demand for such a group of games, but the managements have not been able to come to an agreement.

Next to the world series in New York a clash between Manager Stallings's and Manager McGraw's team would be the big best thing. It is felt there are many fans who would rather see the two local clubs meet than the world's title fought for, as it would settle the much mooted question as to whether the Highlanders or the Polo Grounders are the better ball tossers.

Pennant Chances Slight.

If neither should win a pennant, and such a thing seems unlikely now, if one is to take an unprejudiced and unsmudged view of the situation, the series would be bound to be highly interesting, as far as baseball games are concerned that is, at any rate. The pair have been equally successful in their home and away engages about all season, only at times getting the latter habit coming to Chicago who held down the top-notchers' couch.

The Highlanders are at present in third place, having just been displaced by the Red Sox, and the Giants are second.

Baseball News and Notes

The White Sox have bought a player named Zwilling. If he proves to be a good one then, what a pickle for the others when they write about swilling the beer!

Cy Young's busiest year was in 1892. In that campaign the veteran won thirty-four games and lost seventeen—fifty-one full games and lost seventeen—fifty-one full games pitched during the season.

Cobb is again at the bat and is a big factor in the offensive of the Cubs. Even if those fellows are shooed up they can hustle to beat with such a pitcher as Cobb.

Rugs Raymond announces that he is through with McGraw. Curious. It was through with Raymond that McGraw was through with Rugs.

Stark, a Dayton shortstop, who had a brief trial with Cleveland last year, will have another chance in fast company Brooklyn has bought him.

The weekly baseball papers are full of pleasant things about the corkscrew ball and its manifold advantages. Meanwhile the players are cussing it furiously, and dissecting battered specimens to show its bad qualities.

The much touted Zoiech pitched his first game for the Cardinals Saturday. The Giants picked the redefining out of him in a hurry, and he was drenched amid the pellagropated shouts of the dogs.

Cleveland tried out Tunwell, a Virginia pitcher Saturday. He lost his game, but pitched rattling good ball just the same.

The White Sox have fallen so fast and so far that the Browns are now nudging third even at them and figuring on choking Hugo into the cellar.

Sallee lost his buffalo—the horned animal which he has long used to frame the Giants. They trimmed him and drove him off the slab.

* * *

Heine Berger and George Perring go to Columbus. They ought to be valuable additions to that club. It is hard to understand why they were allowed to leave the major league company.

* * *

Beck gathered another home run at Chicago. Fred's collection of four-baggers has so far as baseballing are concerned the appearance of the Sphinx.

* * *

Only five big league players of long experience have put in all their time with one club. Clymer, Hoyt and Kling have always been Cubs. Lee Tannehill's entire baseball career was in the White Sox, and Eddie Plank began with the Athletics.

* * *

First Baseman Bob Unglaub of Washington has been in the American League for eight years. It is said that during all that time he has used the same bat and the same mitt. He does not use the stick in practice, but only in the game.

* * *

Pitcher Fred Beebe of the Cincinnati Reds is in despair over his apparent inability to secure control this season. Manager Griffith has not given up faith in him.

* * *

Arthur Hofman and Vincent Campbell, both St. Louis boys, were offered to St. Louis clubs, but could not get a chance at home. Campbell and Hofman would look good to friends of the Browns now.

* * *

At last accounts Jimmy O'Rourke, third baseman of the Columbus team of the American Association, was still speechless. He was hit on the head at Columbus by Yeager Fisher, of the Kansas City team and was taken to a hospital. The blow paralyzed his vocal cords.

* * *

Kling is fully restored to his old-time form. He is not only catching in the same old way, but is making the stick talk. A pair of two-baggers were his contribution Sunday.

* * *

Cy Young, the veteran Cleveland pitcher, has the ball with which he won his five hundredth victory stored away in his grip and will keep it. It is the second one he has saved. The other is the one which he pitched when the Cleveland Spiders won the first Temple cup series, years ago. The ball with which he pitched his no-hit no-run record-beat game is the property of Lou Criger, who caught him that day.

TELEPHONE SCORES.

If you cannot come to the American office tomorrow night with the scores of your games go to the nearest telephone booth and call Main 5180 and ask for the Sporting Department. All games received before 10 o'clock at night will appear in Sunday's Great Sporting Section.

STRAIGHT TIPS FOR SPORT FANS

IS THIS STRENUOUS STRUGGLE FOR the game as the greatest third baseman supremacy in the American League keeps on much longer, believe me, there's nothing in store for him but a ride to the dippy works, or some sort of a rest joint for broken-down wrecks. I'm talking about all of the 47-cent kinds of heart disease extra tires, but still it's no go. One day it looks good for the Red Sox to cop the banner; the next it appears as if the Yanks will put it over the local bunch, and make Donovan's men look like boobs. Even though the Sox lost yesterday, even though today's games may change the standing of the leading teams, me for Our Boys every jiffy. I'll hand out now the straightest tip I ever gave. It is especially given to those who have a weak heart. Submerge yourself with the Siegel-Marsh crowd at some country place in New Hampshire a month or so and forget baseball. If you stick around here, and follow the games, you're liable to croak.

ALTHOUGH THOSE DOVES ARE billeeders in the National league, they are all right. They try to play baseball every minute of every game, and that's all that can be expected. They have had pretty tough luck, but they got up on their right against Brooklyn, and the Dodgers were not able to cop the joker from the seventh. Dooley's crowd are a good bunch.

AND NOW FOR SOME ROUGH STUFF!

Several times in the last month a dippy guy has written to me, asking my advice how to win back the joy of his life, a fair fellow. I've told him to consult Beatrice, Dorothy or Elda in the women's department. But he won't stand for that. He wants MY advice. He's going to get it. If he's as nutty as he sizes up, the best better follow Mutt's example in the Sunday American. Sef out.

I ALWAYS DID LIKE TO PIPE A HOT motor paced race and won't miss that three-man classic after the thing ring into the Tremont street car Saturday night. It's the first time this year for a twenty-five mile race with Jimmy Michael, Alfred George Wiley, Elmer Collins and Napoleon Vanoni as the starters, who will take chances with broken bones.

Straight Tips: Please tell me, in strife a ball game, who was the first man to play on Forbes Park in Pittsburg. Was the name of the man Forbes? Please answer in the name of the game.—Subscriber.

JOHN J. RENNER.

Forbes Park was opened last year. The only player who ever played there was Forbes.

Straight Tips: There has been an argument for three years between myself and a friend as to who was the best ball player. I want to settle the matter and would like you to help me. I say Ty Cobb was the best ball player, the championship Boston Americans that ever played baseball, and one of the finest that ever lived. Tyrus Raymond Cobb is the greatest ball player that ever lived. He has all the records of the different years, but we will leave that for you to settle.

I will help you further by stating when you think the better man, Jimmy Collins when he was in his prime, or Hugh Jennings?

1909	.377
1910	.320
1911	.248
1912	.156

You fellows want to get me in wrong. I can see that, but if you want my opinion which I know you will have coming back, here goes. Jimmy Collins's team was one of the greatest that ever played ball. With those pitchers he had his team should be able to beat the Red Sox of to-day. They only lacked the remarkable speed of the present team, but other wise were world beaters, and it was a real thing for them to show up as Jimmy Collins was and is rated by those who know.

TONY MERRINGO BEATS WALCOTT

Five good bouts made up the card at the closing Summer show of the American A. C. In the main bout Tony Merringo outclassed Chester Walcott. The Italian had all the better of the first six rounds, while the other two were even.

Young Jasper, of the North End, who has been traveling a winning path, met a tough man in Joe White of South Boston. The bout was a good draw, with White having a small shade.

Tom Flanagan of Cambridge knew too much for Felix McGuire of East Boston, and would have got the award had one been rendered. McGuire was willing enough, and had plenty of confidence, but the Cambridge boy outscored him.

Kid Crowley beat Kid Green in six rounds. Dan Hurley of Charlestown stopped Tom Walsh in four rounds.

Yet the sale of Pippins is now far in excess of "a million a week"—an output greater than the combined output of any other three cigars in New England, regardless of price.

Could such a sale be maintained and constantly added to for years by anything but real merit? Is all this vast number of smokers wrong? Think it over. Don't be prejudiced. Be fair to yourself and to us by trying

Too Many Beaux

BY BEATRICE FAIRFAX

I'VE been watching, with interest, the manners of a very pretty girl with three beaux.

Just at present she is managing them all beautifully, and each believes himself to be the favored one.

Two of them live in neighboring camps. With one of them she plays tennis in the morning, with the other she rides or motors in the afternoon. The third lives in the hotel, but he is an ardent fisherman and away most of the day. With him she spends her evenings.

Too many hearts to juggle with may result in missing all of them.

She never has two of them on her hands at the same time.

She is easily the belle of the hotel, and yet there are other girls who are more likely to find themselves engaged at the end of the season than her belleship.

Too Many Beaux Dangerous

Too many beaux at a time is one of the first rules toward making an old maid. I know that sounds ridiculous, but you find many an old maid who has been a great belle in her youth.

She is not an old maid because she had no chance to marry, but because she would not settle down and make up her mind. She was too hard to suit. She was spoiled by attention, and always waited for something better to turn up.

Then, one fine day, she awoke to find herself a back number. Her adorers had dwindled down to boys much younger than herself, and soon they, too, fell away.

There are many old maids of just that type—handsome, faded women, with youthful faces and disturbed hearts.

The pretty girl, with the three beaux, may have no such fate; but she runs the risk of it.

The girl with two beaux, if she is clever about it, can stimulate them by jealousy of each other; but when she gets three on her hands, she is apt to come to grief.

Of course, I do not mean that a girl cannot have half a dozen men who like her and enjoy dancing with her, etc. Every attractive girl has that sort of attention.

I mean the girl who is encouraging the serious attentions of several men at the same time.

One Man Enough to Handle

The serious attentions of one man are about all the average girl can manage.

If she has any idea of accepting him, and she should not receive his attentions if she has not, she should put her whole mind and heart on the problem of the wisdom of her choice.

At the end of the Summer season it is usually the quiet mouse of a girl who comes home with a captive trailing after her.

No one has noticed much what she has been doing; but she has gone quietly on her way tightening the chains, day by day, on her willing captive, and at the end of the season she is engaged and her sister, who has had more beaux than she could count all Summer, has nothing to show for it but a few souvenirs and college pins.

Men are a little bit afraid of the girl who has so many beaux. They like to flirt with her, but when it comes to marrying, they feel a bit uncertain.

Why Men Fear Her

They wonder if she will want all this attention after marriage, and if she will be satisfied with the love and devotion of one man.

Take my advice, girls; have all the fun you can, but don't encourage a number of men at the same time.

You can dance and laugh and be on friendly terms with a dozen men, but when it comes to serious encouragement, be content with one.

YOU are here, and you are wanted,
Though a waif upon life's stair;
Though the sunlit hours are haunted
With the shadowy shapes of care.
Still the Great One, the All-Seeing,
Called your spirit into being—
Gave you strength for any fate.
Since your life by Him was needed,
All your ways by Him are heeded—
You can trust and you can wait.

You can wait to know the meaning
Of the troubles sent your soul;
Of the chasms intervening
'Twixt your purpose and your goal
Of the sorrows and the trials,
Of the silence and denials,
Ofttimes answering to your plea.
Of the stinted sweets of pleasure,
And of pain's too generous measure—
You can wait the why of these

Forth from planet unto planet.
You have gone, and you will go.
Space is vast, but we must span it;
For life's purpose is to know.
Earth retains you but a minute.
Make the best of what lies in it;
Light the pathway where you are.
There is nothing worth the doing
That will leave regret or rusing,
As you sped from star to star.

You are part of the Beginning.
You are parcel of To-day.
When He set His world to spinning
You were flung upon your way.
When the system falls to pieces,
When this pulsing epoch ceases,
When the 64 becomes the zero.
You will live, for you will enter
In the Great Creative Centre,
In the All-Enduring Cause.

To Make Life a Burden to the Dingbats

Control of the Temper

By ARLETTA B. CANFIELD.

TO the human being who can grit his teeth and say nothing when he is filled to the brim with honest wrath belongs a crown of the greatest proportions.

The necessary control of the speech is a thing that law attends to in the press and we should be able to attend to it in our own lives. If we are angry at anyone it does not do any good to blaze away at the atmosphere.

Who nurses the best right to control of self, the man who holds back his tongue when made exceedingly angry, or the man who makes the air so blue you can't see through it?

Everybody knows that nothing puts a man who is so angry he can't see straight so far down as letting him be the only angry man there. Nothing so quickly quiets an angry wife as a good-natured reply to some sharp thing she has just said, while there is nothing more aggravating.

Even a child's anger can be lessened materially by a calm-voiced parent. This is the true way to train a child by example, for what he sees constantly practiced he will endeavor as the right way to adjust matters and will adopt it as his own.

Did you ever see a loud-voiced, rattle-brained piece of humanity whose children were well brought up, unless the mother was unusually gentle and had them alone most of the time.

You more than likely find them of the knock-down-and-drag-out order, with no respect for anybody and less than none for their parents, never even thinking of trying to obey them and trying to make life as unpleasant for all the neighbors as lies in their power.

Child as he grows up argues with naturally, that nobody means what he says and that the whole world is a big something to cheat if he can, so he sets to work to try, and if he doesn't meet in time with something to make him see straight he is a ruined man.

Wherever, if you have a quiet, steady manner and keep everything your way, everybody gets to understanding this and you will be considered a leader. If you never get anything better from it you will be known among your family, the place where things count most, as a man whose word needs no bond, the greatest compliment that can be given you.

Who ever pays any attention to the remarks of the woman who is constantly throwing her high-pitched voice into action upon all occasions and who after finding out that she was wrong? Who ever cares what she says or what she thinks?

We all know how funny it is to see two women get started about their children over some very little thing, more often than any other topic, and how

ESSEX COUNTY DINNER-DANCE FILLS BIG GAP

By ELIZABETH ELLIOTT.

The first of the two dinner-dances arranged by the entertainment committee of the Essex County Club is to take place this evening at Manchester, and the prominent fashionables who have been hankering for some kind of excitement for weeks past are, as they express it, "wild with delight at the thought of a function where they can air some of their pretty Summer clothes." The second dance is to be given on August 19, and if the affairs are sufficiently successful others will be given later. The entertainment committee of the club is composed of such well-known society women as Mrs. Gordon Abbott, Miss Mabel T. Boardman, Miss Philip Dexter, Mrs. Lester Leland and Mrs. Washington B. Thomas.

Among those who have reserved tables for tonight and will entertain dinner parties are Mrs. Charles A. Munn, Mrs. Washington B. Thomas, Mrs. Wallace Goodrich, Judge William H. Moore, who will have a party of sixteen; Mrs. John C. Kerr, Dr. L. H. Lancashire, Mrs. J. Warren Willett, Mrs. E. S. Webb, Mrs. S. E. Hutchinson, Mrs. Arthur D. Cook, Samuel Carr, Mr. Reich of the Brazilian embassy, Mrs. Kennard and Mrs. J. B. Hagmann.

Mrs. T. Jefferson Coolidge opens her handsome villa at Manchester-by-the-Sea for the second in the series of musicales arranged by Mrs. Hall McAllister. You first see the look at the home of Mrs. Washington B. Thomas at Pride's Crossing, and for the last, on the 12th of August, Mrs. Alfred Aiken will be hostess at her Pride's Crossing home. Francis Rogers and Otto Hoita are among the prominent artists.

Mr. and Mrs. William T. Aldrich are guests for the season of the former's parents, Senator and Mrs. Nelson W. Aldrich, at Warwick Neck, Rhode Island, and are doing considerable cruising in the Aldrich yachts, the Lady Mary and the Queena. Mrs. William T. Aldrich was Dorothy Davenport of Commonwealth avenue, and her wedding, at Trinity Church last Spring, was one of the most brilliant of the season.

Miss Martha Codman of Newport has sailed for Europe, to be absent several weeks. She will meet her relative, Miss Codman, there and he will assist her in the selection of furnishings for her new Newport villa now in process of erection. Mr. Codman being the architect.

Miss Alice Sargent will again be the only woman to enter a boat in the elimination races this year which are to be held off Marblehead on August 8 and 10, to determine the right to race against the Spanish cruiser boats. She will ship time and the Wolf instead of the Sunatra, which she sailed last year. Miss Sargent is an expert skipper and her friends are all eagerly awaiting the outcome.

Robert Winsor, Jr., Augustus Hemenway, Jr., and J. Tucker Burr, Jr., are cruising in Maine waters on board the handsome yacht Comanche, which was recently purchased by Northeast Harbor.

Mr. and Mrs. Wolcott Howe Johnson and sons of Commonwealth avenue are at their Wenham estate, Long Tree Farm, and are passing much of their time cruising on the Ripple, which likes the Eastern Yacht Club cohorts. Mr. and Mrs. Amory Lee Hodges are also at Wenham and are displaying their accustomed hospitalities at Cranleigh, on Grass Vine road.

One of the finest craft on the North Shore this season is that of Harry Brown of Pittsburg who, after the manner of copying the Sohler cottage at Beverly, which is near the Summer home of ex-President Taft, Mr. Brown and his family made their trip from New York to Bargaintown Point in their yacht.

Miss Elizabeth P. Sohier of Beacon street has opened her cottage at Northeast Harbor for the season. Miss Sohier is a sister of Colonel William D. Sohier and an aunt of Mrs. Herbert Bradlee Shaw (Allen Sohier) and Miss Eleanor Sohier.

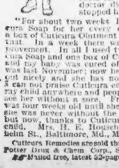
Mr. and Mrs. John Hays Hammond have returned to their Summer home at Magnolia from Chicago, where they went to attend the wedding of a friend.

Mrs. Louis Cabot of Brookline has arrived at Northeast Harbor where, as usual, she is occupying the Storey cottage for the season.

Mrs. John B. Livermore (Josephine Brooks) is the guest of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. H. Mortimer Brooks at Rockhurst, their villa at Newport.

HOW HAPPY THE WORD 'CUTICURA' SOUNDS TO ME

For It Cured My Baby of Itching, Torturing Eczema. First Came when Between 3 and 4 Weeks Old. Used Everything Imaginable: 2 Cakes Soap and One Box Ointment Cured.



"I can't tell in words how happy the word 'Cuticura' sounds to me, for it cured my baby of itching, torturing, humiliating eczema. It first came when she was between three and four weeks old, appearing on her head. I used everything imaginable, and also had one doctor's bill after another but nothing could do it. Then the eczema broke out so badly behind my baby's ear would come off. For months I doctored it but to no avail. Then I began at her head and my hands were nother but sores. I had to keep her in a dark room for two weeks. The doctor did not help me, so I stopped him eating.

"For about two weeks I had used Cuticura Soap for her every day, then I got a box of Cuticura Ointment and Cuticura Resolvent. In a week there was a marked improvement. In all I used about one cake Cuticura soap and one box of Cuticura Ointment and two bottles of Cuticura Resolvent. She was last November; now her hair is growing fine and soft as she has a rear ever. I can not praise Cuticura enough. I can take my child anywhere and people are amazed to see her without a sore. From the time she was four weeks old until she was three years, she was never without the terrible eruption but now, thanks to Cuticura, I have a well child. Mrs. H. E. CHARACTER BUILDING CHIEF WORK OF BOY SCOUT MOVEMENT

Some Boston boys who want to become scouts.

DRILLMASTER'S BLANK.

NAME .....

ADDRESS .....

STATE WHAT MILITARY EXPERIENCE YOU HAVE HAD .....

.....

Fill this out and mail it to George H. Gordon, Secretary, The American Boy Scout, New England Headquarters, No. 5 Bromfield Street, Boston, Mass.

WRITE TO GEORGE H. GORDON, SECRETARY OF THE NEW ENGLAND HEADQUARTERS, NO. 5 BROMFIELD STREET, HE WILL SEND YOU FULL INFORMATION HOW TO BE A SCOUT.

James F. McGrath, the national secretary of the American Boy Scout movement, has issued the following statement about that organization which is of interest as it the Boy Scout applicants in Amory Lee and and the thousands of other boys and their parents who are showing an interest in the project.

"The American Boy Scout movement is one of classic proportions, in the opinion of the land—a movement toward a better and clearer citizenship among the youth but there may be a better manhood. It is an organization which is the hope of the future of the country, to give them better ideals and better citizenship. Consequently there are a million and a quarter lads in America who need this scout idea. We want to take them from the streets during their idle hours. It will take them from the poisonous and the drunkenness. It will be then an incentive to do something to help their fellows and to fit themselves to be their fellows and to fit themselves to be better citizens other than an liberating product, a drug upon the streets and unscrupulous characters as they grow older.

No Useless Idleness.

"This movement will give to every boy an opportunity to employ his idle hours profitably; to learn while he plays; to become better physically through some athletic exercises in the open air; to be helpful in the home in thoughtfulness of his sister, and to make each day full of some little setting of kindness and helpfulness. It teaches him to be the protector of girls and women against cowardly acts; it strikes a full blow at cowardice; it makes the boy feel the inestimable value of patriotism that is real, in that it defends the home as being the most essential thing to defend if the nation is to endure.

"The American Boy Scout movement asks of the boys three things. To do my duty to God and my country; to help other people at all times; to obey the Scout law.

"This is an original movement. It extends from Portland, Me., to Portland, Ore. No boy is too poor to join and no boy is rich to lay his fingers at its purpose. Every mother and father in the nation should do something to make this movement the most successful that has ever been undertaken in America. Each can do a share. Each should do the most he or she can. Those earnestly interested in boy welfare movements have here an opportunity of proving their sincere desire that young America should grow into a better class of citizen.

It Needs Your Aid.

"The American Boy Scout movement needs your aid if you be an employer—it will give honest, faithful, disciplined youths in the office, the counting room, the factory and the mill, for it inculcates the highest moral principles, not the least of which is obedience to authority and loyalty to parents and superiors.

"The work is beginning to show to the boys, first, by giving them a military training and, second, by giving them a habit of obeying orders. It tones them into the open air, where the love of country, the woods, the trees, the streams, flowers. They are taught to be self-reliant, self-supporting.

"They are taught the dignity of labor and the value of a dollar. They are also taught to be honorable in their dealings with each other and to the world at large. They are given to understand that there is a brotherhood among men that should mean something more than a mere empty phrase. They are taught to live right, think right, act right and be PREPARED ALWAYS for any emergency, even to the facing of death in the cause of humanity.

"This movement is headed by men of national reputation—men who know what the American boy needs to help him to the highest citizenship. They have given service together in common cause to help the nation by helping the citizens of the Republic. Any subscription you may see fit to send will be used to the best advantage and will be applied. Send in what you have to-day, and the boys will have a summer in camps, and the boys have to be helped a little, and they will gratefully remember you. The British Boy Scout movement was not a charity proposition, but latter has received over $25,000 to help the work among the British boys. America, in its wealth and belief in republican institutions, should come forward with a greater fund.

"Keep in touch with the movement; put boys of your neighborhood to join a patrol; form a patrol of ten or a dozen, if they lack the initiative, and Headquarters will tell you how to proceed.

Here are a few of the letters received at the New England headquarters, No. 5 Bromfield street, yesterday:

Offers a Camp Ground.

American Boy Scout — Enclosed please find my application to become a Scout. I wish you would send some of the city Scouts down here in the country for an outing. I am sure they would have a good time.

I will furnish them a camp ground on our hill and I could give them shelter in case it stormed. My father has two houses and a number of beds and a large barnyard. The fare from Boston is 40 cents a trolley is only 5 cents.

They could get good, fresh milk, eggs, poultry, vegetables, green corn, in fact anything they want. Tell the farmers at a very low price. I would like to have two or three Boy Scouts come out here for a week. If they had their camping outfit and will make all arrangements here for their board and give them instructions how to get here.

Hoping to hear from you soon, I am, DEWEY CAHNS.

Cobbesett, Mass.

HEROIC ACTS WIN $250 FOR 2 MOTORMEN

Harry Connors of Norwood and Lester Sleeper of Roslindale, motorman employed by the Old Colony Street Railway Company to-day realize that it pays to do brave and unselfish deeds for each man is $125 richer than he was yesterday morning.

These two motormen last Monday morning stopped a runaway trolley car which was carrying more than a dozen terrified passengers, saved them and possibly averted loss of life and injury. Uncoupled they were sent for by President Bancroft of the Boston Elevated and presented with $100 each. The men also were given $25 each by Colonel Sprague, a director of the Old Colony Company as well as an operating officer.

Monday a big semi-convertible car running between East Walpole and the Forest Hills Elevated terminal, outward bound, got away from the motorman at the bill in Washington street. At Grove street the two trucks came together for a few hundred feet, then branch from each other again.

Panic reigned in the runaway and several passengers followed the example of the motorman and jumped. A car from Dedham, in-bound, was approaching. Motorman Connors and Sleeper were in the Grove street waiting room. They ran out, seeing the runaway, and taking in the situation prepared to act.

As the electric switch at the runaway followed the rails from the single strip of track to the other, Connors, just as it did so Sleeper and Connors, risking their lives, leaped on and stopped it.

BOSTON BRIDE CHARGES FRAUD IN WILL FIGHT

NEW YORK, July 29.—Another chapter was added to the bitter battle in the Kings County Surrogate's Court for the millions of Robert H. Thompson, when the young widow, Mabelle A. Thompson, filed a petition in which she charges that the will offered for probate was signed only after occult influences had been brought to bear by J. Linton Thompson, Robert H. Thompson, 2d, and Marion Funk. J. Linton Thompson is the son of Robert T. Thompson. The other two are adopted children.

Thompson was an octogenarian when he wedded the second Mrs. Thompson, a stenographer in his Boston office, and his junior by more than fifty years. He died June 25, about four months after the marriage.

Through her counsel Mrs. Thompson charges that the last will and testament of her husband has been destroyed or concealed and that the one dated June 19, 1908, which has been offered for probate, was procured through undue influence and fraud.

The fraud, alleges the petition, consisted in his nurse children convincing Mr. Thompson and Marion Funk, his adopted daughter, had engagements, powers and could communicate with departed spirits. The three, it is alleged, persuaded the aged man in writing to leave his property to J. Linton Thompson, Robert H. Thompson, 2d, and Marion Funk.

Surrogate Ketcham set September 26 as the date for the hearing of the case.

The young stenographer-widow is living in the Thompson mansion at No. 2882 Washington avenue. She son and adopted children of Mr. Thompson fought her right from the first with regarding the disposition of the old man's property. It is said that Mrs. Thompson, however, has several faithful servants with her and declares she will live in the home until she is ordered to leave by order of the court.

MRS. S. LISOOK, LEFT BY HUSBAND AFTER TEN DAYS

MRS SARAH LISOOK

WEDDED BUT 10 DAYS, LYNN COUPLE PART

LYNN, July 29.—Ten days married, Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Lisook are now living apart and the Jewish colony is much interested in the shattering of a romance in the incipient matrimonial stage. Young Mr. Lisook is living with his parents at No. 111 Blossom street and his pretty bride, who is but seventeen years old, is with her mother at No. 95 on the same street. The young people were married at City Hall on July 18. The bride was Sarah Kolchinsky and she blames her husband's family for the separation. It is stated that after the wedding, young Lisook went to his parents' home and was turned away. He sought refuge with his bride's people and stayed there several days. Now he is back under his mother's roof and neighbors are expecting some legal action as an aftermath.

Young Mrs. Lisook is disconsolate over the loss of her husband and said:

"I think it is a shame the people who are keeping him away. Now he won't speak to me. It is not true that he's only seventeen. He's nineteen. We knew each other in the old country and have been keeping company about two years. When my mother asked him why he was paying attention to me of her it was because he intended to make me his wife. We did not intend to be married for some time until about two weeks ago. Then he asked me to marry me right away. The young husband's mother said that her boy was too young to get married.

THROWN INTO RIVER AFTER BEING ROBBED

Patrick Grady, aged forty, of No. 74 Union street, Medford, was held up in the Charlestown bridge early today, robbed of $15 and then thrown into the Mystic River. He narrowly escaped being drowned.

Grady was going from Boston to Charlestown. He had reached the centre of the draw when out of the shadow sprang two men. Grady proved an easy victim. He took the men but a short time to clean Grady of all he had.

Not being satisfied with what they got they grabbed him, lifted him over the rail and dumped him into the river.

Grady was sinking the water had sufficient strength to call for help. His cries were heard by John O'Connor and William Fish, who were at a nearby boathouse. They put out in a boat and pulled Grady from the water.

Patrolmen Walsh and O'Donnell of the City Square station also heard Grady's cry for help. Upon their arrival at the boat house they sent Grady to the Relief Hospital. He will recover.

Grady is employed at the Navy Yard at Charlestown, and yesterday was his pay day. The police are searching for the two men.

TODAY'S STOCK MARKETS; FINANCIAL NEWS

STOCKS TAKE TURN UPWARD

NEW YORK, July 29.—Reports of the elimination from the stock market of interlopers whose security holdings caused a condition of instability today, caused a continued upturn in prices at the opening on the stock exchange, quotations being marked up all the way from large fractions to nearly 2 points. There was a healthy activity, and commission houses reported that there were some indications of a revival of public interest in the market.

Amalgamated Copper was one of the insane strong features of the market. It sold ex-dividend one-half point, and not only recovered the reduction, but made an additional gain of three-eighths point.

Missouri Pacific, one of the stocks said to have been acquired by the Kuhn-Loeb-Cassel syndicate, moved up 2½ points. Denver and Rio Grande, Rock Island, Wabash and other corporations involved in the same syndicate were also carried far above the list. Paul started off with an advance of 1½ points, but was not sustained, the bold bit of the gain Steel common showed a rise of ½ point at the opening. The curb market was strong and fairly active.

YOAKUM URGES U. S. AID FOR HIGHWAYS

"If we build 100,000 miles of public highways annually for ten years and give to this country 1,000,000 miles of good public roads at an average cost of $3,000 per mile, or $300,000,000 annually, we will be engaging in a national development, the advantages of which in economics, commerce, comforts and enhanced land values, none can foretell.

"This work, if carried on by counties and townships as at present, will be very slow. It should be encouraged under a broad, comprehensive plan outlined by the Federal Government, co-operating with the States."—B. F. Yoakum in good roads address at Buffalo.

Developments in Amalgamated Copper are becoming more and more significant. The next to so widespread and the interest in the stock so absolute that any attempt to depress the price would result in a general disaster. The agreement to curtail output is working out to the benefit of the strongly guarded company, and with the short interest continuing to increase it will come to a test lower than it has ever been.

Conservative bankers are warning their friends to be careful. Artificial developments cause them to forget the fundamental factors of business prosperity and production. The advance in stocks is purely speculative. No one of the fundamental troubles has been cured. A big corn crop was expected, and if we have it the speculation will only make good the stock market expectations of the professionals. Those expectations called for a material rally in August as basis for more complete liquidation of investments. No sane person believes that the United States is a failure, but a great many able think that less energy and the folly of the unwise seeming optimism that forced an artificial boom in business before the foundations were laid for it.

$25,000,000 IS DROPPED IN PEARSON POOL

NEW YORK, July 29.—Twenty-five million dollars is a conservative estimate of the losses of the English-Canadian syndicate, popularly known as the Pearson syndicate, which was formed last January to acquire a large amount of the stock of the Rock Island, Lehigh Valley and Missouri Pacific railroads, with the idea that these railroads, with their allies and connections, might be welded together into a great transcontinental railroad system.

Edward H. Harriman, Pearson and his associates invested more than $50,000,000 in the deal, which was frustrated by the reverse slump in the stock market.

Such a great transcontinental system was the ambition of Edward H. Harriman, master of the Union and Southern Pacific, or the late George J. Gould, builder of the Wabash.

The Pearson men and the Pearson bankers, including Speyer & Co. of London, believed there would be great profit in the Played for Huge Stake and Lost.

The Morgan-Drexel people controlled Lehigh Valley, as they control it to-day. By the marriage of Marjorie Gould to Anthony Drexel, Jr., the latter became interested in the Gould properties. The Goulds control the Wabash system, and the Moore-Reid group the Rock Island, which would tap George Gould's Missouri Pacific and Pearson's Rio Grande connecting with the Western Pacific. George Gould's latest trip abroad, in the connection of which he has spent a large slice of the family fortune.

Therefore the Pearson syndicate decided it to be a good thing to buy heavily the common stock of the Rock Island and as an option offered to purchase big blocks of Missouri Pacific, Kansas City Southern and syndicate played for a big stake—and lost.

Holdings Pass to Kuhn, Loeb & Co.

The depreciation in securities had become so great after the first three weeks of liquidation, in which all stocks shared, that the Anglo-Canadian capitalists began to get nervous and to call for margin their holdings. In the liquidation that has been in progress for a month banks have been calling their loans right and left.

The Pearson syndicate, following the climate of Europe, found itself in a falling market its resources were well-nigh exhausted. Appeals for aid were made in various private banking institutions, but without effect. Kuhn, Loeb & Co. were the next sounded, and Otto Kahn, who in the absence of Jacob H. Schiff practically controls the firm, found himself facing a situation, looked over the securities and decided that the "marked down" figures they looked pretty good.

S. HERBERT MYRICK

PRICES TO RISE, EDITOR SAYS

Herbert Myrick, who is connected with a large number of farm publications, and who has just returned from Europe, declared to-day that the failure of the crops abroad would insure high prices this year for American productions.

"The crop conditions are very poor in all Europe except Russia," said Mr. Myrick. "It is certain that there will be a great market for all American products. What I have seen in my stay in Europe convinces me that we are on the eve of more than one period of unusually high prices. Mr. Myrick is president and editor of the American Agriculturist, New York; the Orange Judd Farmer, Chicago; the New England Homestead, Springfield; the Farm and Home, Springfield, and the good Housekeeping Magazine.

POLLOCK RIP SLUE SHOWS LESS DEPTH

Vineyard Sound is reported to be rapidly shoaling. It is being stated on good authority that vessels drawing twenty-one feet or over will soon be unable to get through Pollock Rip passage. Boston and coastwise company officials say that unless the United States Government comes to the rescue and expends $2,000,000 to dredge the passage, vessels will have to find some other route.

TRACK BURNERS WANT CONTEST AT WORCESTER

By J. C. KERRIGAN.

Barney Oldfield and Julius Kreger, who have been making a barnstorming tour of the country, driving special match races, are bound east, and if the plans of their manager are not upset they will drive a special match race on the half-mile track at Worcester on August 11. Their advance agent has reached Worcester with a thrilling story of a speed duel, in which it is desired that not only speed but reckless driving shall be strong factors, and in order that the race may be all the more dangerous a HUSKY WORKER prize is offered.

New York tracks are not in keeping with the ideas of these two famous dare-devil drivers, and their manager, after looking over the East, has decided that Greendale track in Worcester is the one most to be desired for the purpose. Of course the possibilities of drawing a large crowd of spectators at so much a head has nothing whatever to do with the choice of the track. Oldfield and Kreger never did care for money. All they have ever desired is an opportunity to burn up tracks and prove conclusively that they are about the speediest in existence. That certainly sounds good, but it is rumored that neither man is driving for philanthropic purposes.

Their manager is quoted as saying that he would like to get up a few more interesting events for the same day, but it did not really matter, as the drawing power of Oldfield and Kreger would be the principal grievance. "Still," said he, "if you can get any amateur events, or even professional events, can be arranged, we will make all the more interest for Worcester people. We have a one-mile free-for-all and a twenty-mile stock car race on the card, and any one can qualify, and the finals will make an interesting bill, but the finals for the Worcester automobile men to decide."

Just what position the Worcester Automobile Club will take on the matter is not known, but it can be taken for granted that no race meet will be sanctioned in Worcester that has not the support and approval of the club.

After all that has been said and done Lowell is not to have a real race. This is the final decision, and comes from the head of the movement in favor of the contest. President John O. Heinze of the Lowell Automobile Club has written to several interested parties that the interest displayed in the proposed motor racing carnival at Lowell this year is so slight as not to warrant the completion of any arrangements for the holding of such a contest on the famous Merrimac Valley course, this year at least.

This means that Massachusetts, in fact all the country east of New York city, will not be able to see any of the big men in fast work on the track unless they journey to Long Island or further west. It really seems too bad that Lowell, with the reputation of the past, has been forced to entirely abandon holding a race this year. This has not been brought about by any lack of interest on the part of the Lowell

Some Questions from Omaha

Answer Them for Yourself—Before You Read the Boston American Answers—Writing and Thinking Are Useful Exercises

Copyright, 1910, by the American-Journal-Examiner.

A beautiful and great city is Omaha—with a marvellous future. The city, lying among beautiful, rolling hills, beside a great river, is the centre of an empire of commerce, and a greater empire of agriculture. The streets are wide, the atmosphere is beautifully clear, the citizens (numbering about 150,000) are energtic, alert—all "hustlers," in the true sense of that good American word.

It is inspiring to see that fine city, lying in the heart of our country, ceaselessly active and growing, sending out, taking in, handling and distributing the wealth of the great region of which it is the centre.

And it is even more inspiring to think what such a city will be in the future—within the lives of children now born, when the flying machines will come sailing over those rolling hills, bringing the men from the farms to the intellectual interests of the city; when the great airships go out, taking the men of the city to their homes on the distant green hills. It requires but little imagination to see all that and more.

Truly and beautifully the Bible says, "It hath not yet been shown what we shall be." No man dreams what a great American city will be in days to come, when poverty shall have been stamped out, when the wealth that now lies unexploited in our Western lands shall be fully utilized—AND WHEN THOSE THAT REALLY DO THE WORK SHALL GET A JUST REWARD.

In order to know a community it is necessary to know what the community THINKS. We give you here some questions that come from Omaha.

What is thought? It is a series of QUESTIONS born in the mind, and of ANSWERS to those questions.

Moses asked himself what the people ought to do, and then for answer he gave their laws to the Jews.

Our old forefathers asked themselves how a country should be governed—and then they gave us the Constitution of the United States.

The original savage cave man asked himself what made the lightning and thunder, and why he dreamt at night that his dead grandmother came back—and his answer was the birth of the early religions.

Later on he asked himself if there was any particular reason why the lightning should strike him without his striking back—and the answer was the work of Franklin, Edison and the others that have harnessed up the lightning and put it to work.

You will be interested to know some of the questions that such a city as Omaha is asking—reflections of Western thought.

The questions were submitted by L. A. Higgins, a young reporter of the Omaha World-Herald. Mr. Higgins thought that Omaha would be amused and interested to know how people east of Omaha might answer these questions.

We are going to answer his questions hurriedly here.

Why do not YOU, the reader, also answer them? Before you read our answer to each question, answer the question yourself briefly and thoughtfully, writing out the answer, and then see for yourself how much better your answer is than ours.

Question No. 1—What is your view of the anti-saloon county option movement?

Answer—Men have used alcoholic stimulants in one form or another for thousands of years. They haven't CHANGED very much in those thousands of years—not enough to justify the hope that they can be coaxed or coerced into stopping SUDDENLY the use of alcoholic stimulants.

All efforts at ABSOLUTE PROHIBITION are foolish, because they must be failures.

Don't try to do everything at one time.

Fight whiskey, gin and similar drugs NOW; use all your power to bp the use of drinks containing more than 8 per cent. of alcohol—and then you will have a people as temperate as they are in Germany, France, Italy and elsewhere, where they drink light wines and light beers, AND DON'T DRINK WHISKEY.

If you can fight whiskey, and beat whiskey, that will be enough for ONE effort.

No. 2—Do you think that the high cost of living is apt to be reduced in the near future, and how?

Answer—The trouble isn't chiefly the high cost of living. The trouble is UNEQUAL AND UNFAIR DISTRIBUTION OF WEALTH. It doesn't matter what a man PAYS for a living, if he has money enough to buy it.

The trouble is that those that SELL are more powerful than those that BUY.

The sellers put prices up quickly; the workers find difficulty in putting up the price of what they have to sell—LABOR.

But fair DISTRIBUTION of wealth, a system which will ultimately come, which will realize that the labor which produces is just as valuable as the thing produced, will solve the living problem.

Read Ferrero's "History of Rome"—and find how much they were worrying then about the increased cost of living, two thousand years ago. The worry has lasted ever since.

Immediate problems involved in the cost of living are—to give to the ordinary man HIS SHARE of the marvellous results of labor-saving machinery, besides good pay for his work. To cultivate thoroughly and intensively the land that is cultivated badly. To persuade farmers to cultivate half as much land and do it twice as well, and to persuade the idlers in the cities and the failures in every direction to undertake something that they can DO—and give them a chance to do it.

Organization of industry, of manufactures and of all business on a big scale will solve our problems. This organization will be controlled at first individually and selfishly; ultimately it will be managed publicly and unselfishly.

And the comprehensive organization of wealth and production will surely result finally in giving to all of those that do their share in production A FAIR SHARE OF THAT WHICH IS PRODUCED—and that will be plenty for all and settle the problem of living.

No. 3—Should the purchase of automobiles be confined to the class who have money in the bank? Do you see anything serious in the mortgaging of homes and chattels for the purchase of automobiles?

Answer—The best thing for the man who can AFFORD it to do is to buy an automobile. The man who runs into debt is a fool, for debt is slavery—and the man who makes himself a slave is foolish. If a man has the money in the bank, or if he has property that can be mortgaged within reason to get an automobile for his wife and children and mother and friends—LET HIM GET IT. Better for his family to be enjoying themselves in an automobile than for the banker to be enjoying himself lending the man's money out at usurious interest.

(Another instalment of these questions from the West will be published later.)

Will You Do Something, Mr. O'Meara!

Or Will You Get Out and Give Some One Else a Chance—Boston Overrun With Crime

Just another word about the Boston Common and Police Commissioner O'Meara and then this newspaper hopes that it will be able to let the matter drop.

O'Meara seems determined not to add to the police force on the Common. He has given different reasons at different times for his attitude. None of the reasons have impressed Boston as being a sufficient excuse for a condition that is a disgrace to the city.

O'Meara's last excuse is that there are many other sections of the city that are in bad need of proper police protection—in fact, unsafe, unless better policed.

Will O'Meara please tell the people of Boston, if this is so, why he has not come out before this, explained the inadequacy of the police, and demanded proper help. Why has he kept silent with the city in danger!

If, as head of the police force of Boston, O'Meara has any real, well defined duties to perform, it is to see that Boston has enough police and that after he gets them that they do their work.

The Commissioner may say that he has called attention in his reports to the inadequacy of the force. If that is all he has done, with the city in danger, he has shown his incapacity for the job he is holding down.

Boston has enough money to hire enough policemen to properly protect this city. It is O'Meara's duty to see that he gets them, and his own excuse in connection with the Common is a plea of guilty to the charge that he has neglected his duty.

In the meantime the city is overrun with crime—some of which O'Meara may describe as "trivial," but which the average citizen regards as serious.

This newspaper does not want to keep harping on this thing, or on anything that is not fair and square. But it is constrained to ask, and ask it very seriously, Are you going to do anything in this matter or are you going to get out and give someone else a chance?

The eyes of Boston are on you, Mr. O'Meara!

Winifred Black Writes of the "Home Grouch"

By WINIFRED BLACK

A CLEVELAND woman brought suit for divorce against her husband the other day because he played solitaire so much that he not only had no time for work, but he had no time to pay her the least attention.

"I've seen him spend whole days playing solitaire," said the Cleveland woman in court, "and he would snap at me like a dog if I tried to speak one word to him."

I hope she got her divorce.

Of all demons that are hard to bear it seems to me the dumb demon is the worst. I'd rather a man would take an ax and break every window in the house, set fire to the garage and kick the cat into the alley than to see him come home with what his office associates would call "a grouch."

I know a woman whose husband has a "home grouch"—or at least he did have.

On the street, at the office, in the restaurants, down at the club, who so gay, so debonair, so good-humored, so easy-tempered, as the man with the "home grouch"? But the instant that man set his feet on the steps of his own home his face settled into a positive scowl, and he would spend a whole evening sulking because he didn't like something there was for dinner.

His wife used to cry about it at first. Then she stopped crying and began to laugh. She never had a "home grouch," so she had a lot of friends, and the husband soon grew tired of sulking in the corner when he heard his wife laughing and singing out on the porch with a crowd of friendly neighbors.

The "home grouch" has changed his tune. And everybody is much happier.

Of course, no sensible woman expects a tired man to come home grinning from ear to ear, and thinking up funny stories for her especial benefit. Men have their moods as well as women, and a good wife will love her husband out of the blues without saying a word to him about it. But the "home grouch," the man who is too cowardly to vent his temper on another man downtown, and comes home and vents it on his helpless family, must go.

Let's try the remedy of a good laugh and some honest and wholesome letting alone for this variety of man.

Exalt the straight, set aside the crooked, the people will be loyal. Behave with dignity, they will be lowly; be pious and merciful, they will be faithful; exalt the good, teach the unskilful, they will grow willing.—Confucius.

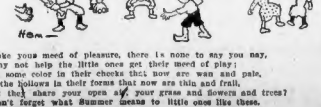
The Sufferers

By Berton Braley

Be happy with your motor boats and autos and canoes,
For these be pleasant days, indeed, to tour about or cruise;
Seek out the mountain places, where the air is cool and pure,
Or hurry to the seashore, where the crashing breakers lure.
Oh, find your lazy comfort in whatever place you please,
But don't forget what Summer means to little ones like these.

The dark and reeking tenements, the baking, blazing street,
The cruel sun that's overhead, the hot stones under feet;
The panting days, the sleepless nights—when babies gasp for breath,
And stalking through the swarming poor there comes the figure Death;
The fetid reek of humid air, the care and anguish breese—
Such is the life that Summer means to little ones like these.

They're robbed of childhood's heritage, of flowers and of grass,
For parks are far and fare is high, and so the long days pass
With weary "little mothers" and with babes that pant and cry,
While the sun comes beating downward from the hot and cruel sky;
So hike for open country and the "fresh and foamidg seas,"
But don't forget what Summer means to little ones like these.



Yes, take your need of pleasure, there is none to say you nay,
But why not help the little ones get their need of play;
To put some color in their cheeks that now are wan and pale,
To fill the hollows in their forms that now are thin and frail,
Cannot they share your open air, your grass and flowers and trees?
Ah, don't forget what Summer means to little ones like these.
